Married Men, Farmers Get Deferments From Draft

Many Minds at Rest As President States Rules to Govern Selective Service

President Truman yesterday set many a mind at rest by officially deferring married men, farmers, all men with dependents and many others from the 21-month peace-time draft.

The deferments are far more liberal than they were during World War II.

Most of them had been predicted long ago, but they were not official until the President announced them yesterday in a 30-page set of regulations that also ordered Selective Service to speed up induction machinery.

This will be accomplished by sending out the all-important classification questionnaires as soon as possible to single, non-father, non-veteran eligibles after men, 18 through 25, register at their local boards between August 30 and September 18. (Later, all except 18-year-olds must fill out the questionnaires.)

Given 10 Days

The classifications as listed by the President yesterday fall into 13 groups, with men available for military service listed as 1-A. Actual drafting of 1-A men will be by age, with the oldest called first.

These are the men who are exempt from the draft:

The law passed by Congress automatically exempts war veterans with at least 90 days' service between Pearl Harbor (December 7, 1941) and V-J Day (September 2, 1945), or with 12 months' service between September 16, 1940, and June 24, 1948 (the date the draft law went into effect).

Also exempt by law are ordained ministers, students studying for the ministry, and conscientious objectors (from combatant service; they may be used in the military services in non-combatant activities if they do not protest.)

Automatically deferred by the draft law are high school students, up to graduation or the age of 20 (whichever comes first) and college students for the rest of the academic year. However, students must be doing all right in their studies.

The law says the President has the right to defer certain others, and today he did, listing them as follows:

II-A—Men involved in study, research or medical health, safety or interest. The deferments will be for one year or less, and may be changed by the President, or by local boards (if the men change jobs).

II-C—Farm workers or men engaged in agricultural occupation. The same deferment period and qualifications govern this group the same as II-A.

III-A—Anyone with dependents. This can mean a married man who

Marriage, Not Date, To Govern Exemption

By The Associated Press

Draft officials said last night that as rulings now stand men eligible for the draft who are married between now and their registration period will be exempt from service.

Rulings announced yesterday merely say that a married man is deferred with no specific date mentioned as to when he shall have been married.

The effect, for the present, officials said, is that men who are wed between the present time and when they are called upon to register will be exempt.

VIRGINIA STATE TROOPERS EXAMINE SMOULDERING WRECKAGE OF AIRFORCE BOMBER NEAR CULPEPER

Police Raid 3 After-Hours Drink Clubs

Police put a damper on much of the city's 2 a. m. to dawn revelry early yesterday with raids on three prominent after-hours drinking clubs.

Approximately 100 policemen, split into three raiding parties, made simultaneous swoops at 3:45 a. m. on the Five O'Clock Club, 621 Pennsylvania ave. nw.; the Allies Club, 1326 Masachusetts ave. nw., and the Spotlight Club, 17th and M sts. nw.

The raids resulted in the arrest of 18 persons, 7 of whom were later released, without charge, and the seizure of 4100 bottles of assorted whiskies, marked money, club records and membership lists.

The surprise police raids on the ostensibly private membership club had all the air of a military operation. They had been planned for several weeks by Inspector Floyd A. Truscott, acting superintendent of police in the absence of Maj. Robert J. Barrett, and Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad.

Truscott and Blick worked until 8 p. m. Friday completing plans for the raids.

A 3 a. m., 100 selected police personnel assembled at Union Station and were formed into three squads. Each squad was armed with a search warrant and commanded by an inspector. Each was equipped with a floor plan of the club it was to raid. Each included a member of the vice squad and a policewoman.

The squads were given sealed orders when they met at Union Station. The orders contained instructions that men be placed at every entrance and exit of the clubs. They contained descriptions of persons at the three clubs wanted for arrest.

After all watches had been synchronized, the raiding parties

3 Men Killed In 2 Nearby Plane Crashes

Two nearby plane crashes yesterday claimed the lives of two Air Force men and a Navy flier. Another Air Force man was reported missing.

An Air Force F-51 fighter plane from Bolling Field also crashed near Marion, Ill., but its pilot escaped injury.

Two Air Force fliers were killed when their twin-engine B-26 attack bomber crashed in an open field near Route 621 about 15 miles west of Fairfax, Va.

Air Force authorities identified the dead as Col. E. A. Stone, president of the executive board of the Civil Air Patrol, of Columbus, Ohio, and Tech. Sergt. C. E. Chaplin, Lockbourne Air Force Base, Columbus.

Missing was Capt. H. L. King, also of Columbus.

2 Bodies Found at Scene

Only two bodies were found at the scene of the crash. At an early hour today rescue workers were still searching for Captain King.

The plane reportedly took off from Bolling Field for Lockbourne Air Base at 5:07 p. m. It smashed into the ground and burst into flames about 75 yards from a farm house.

Police reported that the crash occurred at about 5:20 p. m. daylight saving time and the wreckage burned until almost 10 o'clock.

Cause of the crash was not immediately determined and police took up guard over the wreckage to await the arrival of Civil Aeronautics Administration and Air Force officials from Washington.

The attack bomber, which crashed about 20 minutes after departing from Bolling Field, had visited Bolling on a routine training flight and was returning to its home base at Lockbourne.

The second fatal accident occurred when a Navy dive bomber

Jurisdiction Violated

5 U. S. Sector German Police Carried Off in Russian Raids

Berlin, Aug. 20 (AP).—Soviet-controlled German police backed by Red tommy guns today staged two lightning raids along the western sector border and carried off five American-sector German police.

An American official denounced the action as a violation of United States jurisdiction.

The raids were directed against black market operators in Potsdamer Platz in the heart of Berlin where the American, British and Soviet sectors converge.

Germans Jeer Russians

The Soviet-licensed news agency ADN tonight said 2500 persons were arrested in the two raids. ADN said a third raid was carried out in Berlin's Central Market Hall deep in the Soviet sector, where large amounts of black market food was confiscated.

In the first raid today, Russians estimated 600 alleged black marketeers were hauled away.

Germans jeered 60 Russian military police and soldiers who withdrew about an hour and a half after the raid. Some soldiers immediately leaped from their truck and rushed at the crowd. The Germans fled into the American and British sectors.

Later in the afternoon, another group of Russian military police with their controlled German police invaded the American sector for at least the third time within the last week.

Ray Ashworth, United States public safety officer, said they rounded up an estimated 200 alleged German black marketeers and took them into the Russian sector for arrest.

Four American-sector German police were seized as they drove up in a jeep to investigate the disturbance.

When the American-sector German police chief for the Borough of Kreuzberg sought to investigate, he also was picked up. Ashworth said he was enticed into the Russian sector to talk over the release of his men.

Two Policemen Escape

Two of the policemen later escaped in the milling crowd, but three still were held hostage tonight. Ashworth said he has demanded their immediate release.

The incident, he said, was a clear violation of United States jurisdiction.

Answering Russian-licensed press charges that Americans were harboring black marketeers, Col. Frank L. Howley, United States commander in Berlin, declared the United States Military Government was supporting efforts to prevent black market activities in Berlin.

System Produces Leaders

General Motors Operation Decentralizes Management

The second of three daily articles.

By Agnes E. Meyer

II

"We centralize policy and decentralize administration" said C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors, when he was summing up for me during the war the managerial philosophy of the corporation. This clear-cut method of operation is the key to General Motors' efficiency. Another principle, equality of opportunity of education for all its employes, is no less important a factor.

My interest in studying and describing all too briefly how this philosophy is implemented, arises from the fact that this great corporation has evolved as the best answer to material objectives, the two principles, flexible administration and equality in education, which are also the basic needs of democracy.

Both principles have exactly the same objectives, efficient production, the constant encouragement of individual initiative and the development of new leadership from the assembly line to top management.

"Industry essentially is people" said Harry B. Coen, vice president in charge of employe relations. "Bigness is not unsound in itself, if the organization is sound and gives talent a chance to rise to the top all along the line. Nowadays the demand for skilled, experienced administrators is so great in mass production industries, that no institution which cannot produce its own leadership, can expect to survive."

Before we can understand how decentralization produces leadership, it is necessary to give a short outline as to how General Motors is organized, how responsibility is distributed and how its over-all policies are formulated.

The five top officials of General Motors, the president, C. E. Wilson, and three executive vice presidents, together with the chairman of the board, Alfred P. Sloan, jr., are responsible to the stockholders for the operation of General Motors. They have two advisory committees, one on policy, one on administration. These committees constitute the real government of General Motors, as they have complete authority on policies and in the selection of chief executives other than those appointed by the board itself.

Under the direction of the policy and administration committee, the actual executive work dealing with special activities such as finance, law, public relations, sales, engineering and manufacturing, is carried out by vice presidents, each in charge of one of these departments.

General Motors has 37 separate divisions with 104 manufacturing plants ranging from the big Buick and Frigidaire plants that employ 20,000 or more men, to small specialty plants, employing less than 1000 workers. Each of these divisions is managed with a high degree of autonomy by a chief executive. This local executive likewise gives freedom of action and responsibility for results to all of his subordinates right down to the foremen.

And just as central policies of

Take Possession Monday

Federal Marshals Will Open Locked Gates of Old Oak Hill

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Federal marshals are to move in Monday to take over the Oak Hill estate once owned by President James Monroe, so the public can inspect it before it is sold at public auction September 2.

The order for the marshals to move in and take posession was issued in Richmond, Va., yesterday by Judge Sterling Hutcheson of the Federal Court for the Eastern District of Virginia.

Public inspections, which were to begin last Saturday, were blocked by the present owner, Frank C. Littleton. Gates to the venerable Monroe mansion were chained and locked, and Littleton stayed inside, while deputy sheriffs, reporting that he had at least a pistol, warned visitors to stay away from the house.

Oak Hill is a 1725-acre estate in Loudoun County, Va., near Leesburg, where Monroe lived for several years after he left the White House. Littleton, Loudoun County native, bought it many years ago after a business career in New York, and in late years has lived there alone. A Federal Court order for the auction sale was issued as a step in Littleton's bankruptcy, in process of settlement for some seven years.

Littleton posted a sign on his gate after the first inspection date last Saturday indicating his contention that the main house of 20-odd rooms and its grounds were not included in the survey of the 1725 acres covered by the court's auction sale order.

Officials, however, said the mansion was included in the property that is to be sold, although its furnishings, many of them historic pieces, are not subject to the forthcoming sale. One official estimated the sale price would have

Long-Missing Red 'Boss' To Testify

House Committee To Subpena Peters At Hearing on His Deportation

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The mysterious J. V. Peters, missing alien who reportedly is boss of the Communist underground in this country, has been ordered to appear for deportation hearings in New York within a week.

Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said yesterday the committee planned to serve a subpena on the Communist boss at that time.

Peters has been sought by the committee for three years for questioning in connection with Communist activities from New York to Hollywood.

Wanted for Questioning

Currently he is wanted for questioning concerning testimony of Whittaker Chambers, a senior editor of Time magazine, that it was Peters who introduced him to Alger Hiss, president of the Carnegie Peace Foundation, and former high ranking State Department policy maker.

Hiss and Chambers are slated to face each other in a dramatic open session of the committee next Wednesday. Chambers has named Hiss and several other former New Dealers as members of an "elite" Communist underground, in the early 30s dedicated to rising to positions of influence in the Government of the United States.

At first Hiss denied knowing a man by the name of Whittaker Chambers, but later, confronted with Chambers identified him as a man he had known by the name of George Crosley.

All Refuse to Answer

The last three of the "elite" group named by Chambers were questioned yesterday in executive session and all refused to answer most subcommittee questions on the grounds of possible self-incrimination and under the first amendment to the Constitution dealing with political beliefs, it was reported.

The three were John Abt, Lee Pressman and Nathan Witt. Abt and Pressman are now leaders in the Wallace Progressive Party and Witt is a private attorney. The three were accompanied by their attorney, Harold Cammer, of the firm of Pressman, Witt and Cammer.

Nixon said the three refused to answer any questions concerning their knowledge of Chambers or those he listed in the ring on the grounds of self-incrimination.

On the question of whether they were members of the Communist Party, Nixon said, the three declined to answer on two grounds—self-incrimination and the right to decline to answer questions concerning political affiliations under the first amendment to the Constitution.

Used by Hollywood Figures

The first amendment to the Constitution is the ground offered by 10 Hollywood figures who declined to answer whether or not they were Communists and all were convicted of contempt of Congress.

At the end of the session Witt told reporters he had cited five grounds for refusing to testify: (1) the first amendment to the Constitution; (2) that the committee was exercising judicial powers which the Constitution

West Dispute Delays Talk With Molotov

Smith, British Envoy Confer With French; No Agreement Seen

Moscow, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Disagreement among the three Western powers appeared tonight to be delaying the seventh and perhaps final meeting here between Western representatives and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

It appeared tonight that the next meeting with Molotov probably will be postponed at least one more day.

United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith conferred for nearly two hours with Frank Roberts, special British envoy. Then Smith and Roberts drove to the French Embassy for a one-hour talk with French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau.

Informed observers believed the Western powers are not yet agreed on exactly what they are going to say to Molotov at the next Kremlin meeting. The Western representatives have been conferring intensely during the past few days, and there have been several exchanges between the envoys, their capitals, and their governments.

William L. Clayton Home Ransacked; Family Absent

The home of William L. Clayton, former Undersecretary of State, at 2812 Woodland dr. nw., was reported broken into and ransacked sometime early yesterday.

No estimate of the loss can be obtained until Clayton returns the latter part of September, Hannan told police.

U. N. Assembly Told to Keep Watch on Balkan Situation

Lake Success, Aug. 20 (NYHT).—The United Nations Balkan Committee warned the General Assembly today that Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia are still menacing peace in the Balkans by aiding Greek guerilla forces and that the U. N. had better keep an eye on the situation.

In its first full-fledged report to the Assembly, which established the group last year, the nine-nation committee made these points on the present state of affairs along the Greek frontier:

1. Greece is the only one of the four states that gave the committee any help in trying to restore good neighborly relations.

2. Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia not only have refused to work with the committee but also have been helping the Greek guerillas with war materials, shelter and moral support on such a scale that it must have been done "with the knowledge of" the three governments.

3. As long as events continue along this course, the committee

U. S. Orders Lomakin to Leave Over Teachers

State Dept. Says In Sharp Note Official 'Abused' His Prerogatives

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

The State Department, on orders of President Truman, has called for the banishment from this country of Jacob M. Lomakin, Russian consul-general in New York.

He will be given a "reasonable time" to wind up his affairs. Then Mr. Truman will revoke the Russian's "exequatur," the document authorizing him to perform his duties in the United States. What will happen to Lomakin after he gets back to Moscow is something for the future to answer.

Lomakin has booked passage on the Swedish-American liner Stockholm for August 28, it was learned last night in New York. He and his family are to sail on that date.

In a sharply-worded note delivered at the Soviet Embassy Thursday night, and made public yesterday, the United States Government charged that Lomakin was guilty of "abuse" of the prerogatives of his position, and guilty, too, of a "gross violation" of the internationally accepted standards of diplomatic conduct.

This broadside grew out of Lomakin's activities in the case of the fugitive Russian school teachers in New York—Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina and Mr. and Mrs. Mikhail Samarin.

"The Department of State," said the note delivered at the Soviet Embassy, "is . . . requesting the President to revoke the exequatur issued to Consul General Lomakin, and it is requested that he leave the United States within a reasonable time."

Lomakin is the first Soviet diplomat to be so treated by the United States since relations between the two countries were resumed in 1933.

What Reds Charged

Mrs. Kasenkina and the Samarins, who tutored the children of Soviet officials in this country, failed to show up for a Russian-bound steamship on July 31.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov charged that they were "kidnaped" by an anti-Communist underground organization in New York, with the "acquiesence" of the FBI.

The United States Government, in its note, scoffed at the charges, and made it plain that Mrs. Kasenkina and the Samarins will be protected so long as they want to stay in this country.

"This Government," the note said, "recognizes the right of Soviet officials to take appropriate measures for the protection of the rights of Soviet citizens.

"Such Soviet citizens are, however, themselves entitled to the protection of the applicable laws of the United States, and the Government of the United States cannot permit the exercise within the United States of the police power of any foreign government."

Possible Fate

Victor Kravchenko, who quit his job as Russian purchasing agent here in Washington during the war and found sanctuary in this country, predicted in New York that Lomakin faced the loss of his career and even the "concentration camp" for his stupid mistakes in the handling of the runaway Russian school teachers.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov was made to look pretty ridiculous at one stage of the melodrama.

On August 12, Molotov took a hand in the case from Moscow. He

New Ambassador From Turkey Decided On a Diplomatic Career in Childhood

As a child Feridun Cemal Erkin, the new Turkish ambassador, decided he wanted to enter his country's diplomatic service.

FERIDUN CEMAL ERKIN

His career since then has been a development of that ambition awakened by youthful contact with people interested in foreign affairs. And today he is regarded as one of the most successful of the younger generation of Turkish diplomats.

The ambassador's father was an official in the European Debt Commission, an organization that existed because the corrupt and inefficient Ottoman Empire has accumulated obligations faster than it could pay them off.

Years later by one of those quirks that sometimes enable a son to see the end of his father's work, the ambassador served as counselor of a Turkish delegation in Paris in 1933 that arranged for final liquidation of the obligations. The liquidation was completed in 1942, and the ambassador takes pride in the fact that the republic met the obligations of the preceding government.

University of Paris Alumnus

Feridun Cemal Erkin is a graduate of the Galata-Sary Lyceum of Istanbul and the University of Paris (Law Faculty). He also served briefly in the army during the World War I period.

Upon his return from Paris he served from 1925 to 1927 as secretary-general to the commission for the exchange of Greek and Turkish populations between the two countries.

He was then assigned to Prague and later to the Turkish Embassy in London, where he remained until 1929 as first secretary. He then served as chief of the political section of the Turkish Foreign Office for three years and in 1932 was promoted to the rank of counsellor of embassy.

In this capacity and later as charge d'affaires he served at the embassy in Berlin until 1935 when he was transferred to Beyruth as Turkish consul general.

In 1937 he returned to the Foreign Office and was promoted to director general of the Commercial and Economic Section of the Ministry. From June 1938 to July 1939 he was consul general in Berlin, then returned to Turkey to serve three years as director general of the Political Section of the Foreign Office.

Sent to Rome as Ambassador

In 1944 he was advanced to assistant to the Secretary General of the Turkish Foreign Office with the rank of minister, and the following year became Secretary General, a rank equivalent to Assistant Secretary of State.

Two years later he was assigned to Rome as ambassador from where he was transferred to Washington.

In 1945 he was a member of Turkish delegation to the San Francisco Conference and in 1946 headed the republic's delegation at the final meeting of the League of Nations.

Now 49 years old, he is a tall, sitive man with horn rimmed glasses and receding hair. Outwardly grave, there is a ready, unassuming natural friendliness about him.

Under doctor's orders, he smokes very little, and he finds no time to play the violin, which he studied for about 20 years, nor for tennis.

His relaxation is chiefly in reading historical works, particularly memoirs, and some day he hopes to write his own. He also enjoys operas and concerts and attended them frequently in Rome.

His wife and a niece of hers, Miss Selva Fetteh, who studied at the American College in Istanbul, have come to Washington with him. Two more nieces are coming; one will attend Madeira School, Greenway, Va., and the other Bryn Mawr.—Lee Grove.

Grammos Push Won, Greeks Look to East

Athens, Aug. 20 (U.P.)—Greek army intelligence reports said today that the guerilla forces of Gen. Markos Vafiades are regrouping in Albania and are planning to establish a second "Free Greece" in the Vitsi Mountains, east of the Grammos range.

The original "Free Greece" has been chopped down from 1000 square miles to 180 square miles, and Premier Themistokles Sophoulis, in an order of the day, declared the Grammos campaign finished and completely successful.

Military observers, while not as enthusiastic as Sophoulis, said the Grammos offensive was in its last stages and probably will end within a few days.

Seventeen Communists were executed by a firing squad in Athens today. Forty other alleged Communists were sentenced to death by courts-martial in Athens and Kosani.

The General Confederation of Labor, which is demanding more pay for its members, threatened to call a nation-wide general strike Tuesday. The threat came after the government agreed to "adjust" the wages of communications workers, ending their walkout.

to be about $200,000 to cover Littleton's debts.

According to Judge Hutcheson's order, marshals are to take possession at 10 a. m. (E.S.T) Monday.

The order said the action was to be for the purpose of maintaining the property in order and keeping it open for public inspection. Visitors inspected the grounds but not the house last Saturday. Inspection dates advertised for Monday and Tuesday this week ran into the impasse of chained gates and deputy sheriffs.

The court order is to be executed by United States Deputy Marshal Russell V. Brownell, jr., whose headquarters is in Alexandria, Va. He had not been reached last night for comment on detailed plans.

Littleton Not Reached

Neither had Littleton been reached. Of his two Leesburg telephones, one did not answer, the other was first reported busy and then out of order.

Under the court order, marshals are to have the property open on the remaining dates advertised in the notice of sale as those for public inspection of the property. These are August 24, 25, 26, 28, and September 1. The order empowers Brownell to engage the necessary help to maintain the premises and prevent the debtor or anyone else from interfering with the public's inspection of the property.

The marshal's office is to retain possession of the estate until 6 p. m. Eastern standard time September 2, the date of the sale.

Paper Sees Moscow Plot To Oust Tito

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
COL. GEN. PEKO DAPCEVIC

London, Aug. 20 (AP).—The London Evening News declared today Prime Minister Stalin has ordered the stage set for a coup d'etat in Yugoslavia and already has chosen a successor to Premier Marshal Tito.

The story, bylined by "the Evening News Diplomatic Reporter," gave no source for the information.

"Developments in the Moscow-Belgrade dispute are expected in the next three weeks," it said. "Preparations are going ahead in Moscow for bringing about a coup in Yugoslavia to replace the Tito regime with an orthodox 'Stalinist' government.

"Marshal Stalin has ordered the formation in Moscow of a Free Yugoslav Committee, to be composed of anti-Tito Yugoslav Communist emigres. He is understood to have designated as successor to Tito, if the coup succeeds, Col. Gen. Peko Dapcevic, who is believed to be at present in Moscow."

The Communist London Daily Worker also talked about a "military movement against Tito." But it spoke only on deflections in the ranks of the Yugoslav army—not of outside pressure.

Countries Under Red Shadow Get U. S. Aid

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 20 (AP).—In the three years since the end of the war, the United States Government has given reconstruction grants to the rest of the world totaling more than 16 billion dollars, exclusive of the European recovery program.

Statistics supplied to the United Nations Economic and Social Council today showed United States Government loans, property credits and grants to the rest of the world between July 1, 1945 and March 31, 1948 amounted to $16,326,000,000.

In addition, United States Government credit and relief grants still to be utilized, including the ERP, totaled more than nine billion dollars.

A considerable portion of the utilized total went to countries beyond the Iron Curtain, including 468 million dollars to the Soviet Union.

United States grants and loans to countries in the Soviet sphere totaled $1,457,000,000 up to March 31. Of this, $1,122,000,000, or 77 per cent, was not repayable.

The figures were contained in a United States report on implementation of a General Assembly resolution, which had urged United Nations members to take all possible steps, "which may lead to the early solution of the problem of economic reconstruction of devastated areas."

The report showed that of the total U. S. grants and loans utilized since the war, $13,762,000,000 or 84 per cent, went to areas designated by the U. N. as devastated by the war. A total of $2,119,000,000 or 13 per cent, went to Germany and Japan, and 445 million dollars or 3 per cent, to the other countries, including Canada and Latin America.

Britain received the greatest share of American financial assistance, and more than twice as much as any other country.

During the three-year period, the United Kingdom received a total of $4,699,000,000, of which all but 299 million dollars was repayable. Credits to Britain totalling 35 million dollars not included in the Marshall Plan were still to be utilized on March 31.

Assistance beyond the iron curtain included 20 million dollars to Albania, 214 million dollars to Czechoslovakia, 18 million dollars to Hungary, 438 million dollars to Poland, 468 million dollars to the Soviet Union, and 299 million dollars to Yugoslavia. Assistance to Albania and Yugoslavia was entirely nonrepayable.

Authorized credits to Communist controlled countries not utilized by March 31, 1948, comprised 25 million dollars to the Soviet Union and six million dollars to Poland.

Reds Demand 'Guilt' Slips for U. S. Prisoners

Heidelberg, Germany, Aug. 20 (AP).—United States Army headquarters disclosed tonight that a Russian offer to return two Americans picked up at the Soviet zone border August 5 had been refused because the Russians demanded admissions of "guilt."

The Russians produced the men August 10 at the American-Soviet zone border and said they would free them if an American liaison officer would sign a receipt, drawn by the Russians, admitting that the two men had entered Russian territory without authority and had carried a camera and taken pictures of the border while in Russian territory.

The liaison officer refused on the ground that he was authorized only to sign a simple receipt.

The Russian negotiators then took the two Americans back into the Soviet zone.

The Americans, Lieut. Sherman S. Turner, jr., of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Roland M. Myer of Brooklyn, both members of the United States military government, have not returned since to the American zone.

Truman Greets Groups From Two Readings

President Truman yesterday praised the good relations between Great Britain and the United States as he greeted delegations from Reading, Pa., and Reading, England.

The group from England, headed by the Right Worshipful Mayor of Reading, Alderman H. V. Kersley, is visiting the Pennsylvania city for its 200th anniversary.

U. S. Chiefs of Staff Called To Confer With Forrestal

Secretary of Defense Forrestal summoned the United States joint chiefs of staff yesterday to a highly important weekend conference at the Naval War College at Newport, R. I.

They will get a sum-up of the Berlin situation from Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff. Also, Forrestal will report on his recent talks with Canadian defense officials.

Like the conference last March in Key West, Fla., this new meeting is being held outside Washington for the expressed purpose of being free from interruptions and administrative pressures around the Army, Navy and Air Force headquarters.

Similar meetings will be held every few months in the future, the Defense Department said.

At the Florida meeting, which Forrestal held with the chiefs of staff, the specific functions and responsibilities of the three services were worked out under the new national defense setup.

The present conference is dealing with problems of strategic air warfare in the atomic age.

It is also concerned with the various kinds of weapons now in the arsenals of the Army, Navy and Air Force or on their drawing boards.

Possibly a decision will be made on the Navy's retiring its only two currently operating battleships, the Missouri and Iowa, and using the money and men on aircraft carriers, submarin and anti-submarine projects.

Reds See Espionage Threat In Foreigners' Soviet Wives

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 20 (U.P.)—A Soviet representative said today that his government sometimes refuses to let the Russian wives of foreigners leave Russia for fear they would be used as foreign agents.

A. P. Pavlov told the United Nations Economic and Social Council the Russian refusal is based solely on "national security."

"Foreigners send their nationals in to recruit agents, especially from among our women," he said. "This is the core of the matter."

His statement came during discussion of a Chilean amendment to a resolution deploring laws forbidding marriages between persons of different color, race, nationality or religion. The Chilean measure also condemns restrictions on choosing a spouse and measures denying "certain contracting parties" the right to leave their country or origin and live in any other with their mates.

The amendment was introduced as the result of Soviet refusal to permit the Russian daughter-in-law of the former Chilean ambassador to Moscow to go to Chile.

Consul Has Doctor For Teacher Visit

New York, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Soviet Consul General Jacob Lomakin today notified Roosevelt Hospital he had selected a doctor to visit Mrs. Oksana S. Kasenkina, Russian teacher who was reported as still in critical condition after her leap from a third-floor consulate window.

Dr. Grant Pennoyer, her physician, said the doctor had not shown up yet, however. Dr. Pennoyer had offered to let the Russians send a physician to go over Mrs. Kasenkina's records and satisfy the Russians that she is being given proper treatment.

Mrs. Kasenkina is the central figure in incidents which have led the United States Government to demand that Moscow recall Lomakin from his post.

Roosevelt Hospital authorities said they had rejected the names of two doctors chosen by Lomakin because they were not surgeons qualified in New York State.

Dr. Pennoyer had stipulated that Lomakin's physician would have to be licensed to practice in the State.

A hospital bulletin said Mrs. Kasenkina's condition had "improved" though it still was "critical." It added that she was taking nourishment and her respiration was "better."

"Her temperature has dropped 3 degrees and her pulse is down somewhere near normal," it said.

Mrs. Kasenkina Improves

Dr. Pennoyer said tonight that Mrs. Kasenkina was "improving right along, though she's till on the critical list." He said she would have to undergo several operations when she recovers sufficiently, which he expects her to do.

Zina Ivanora, Russian consulate secretary, and her associate, Marie Kharlamova, with whom Mrs. Kasenkina spent the last hours in the consulate before leaping from a window, were turned away from the hospital today.

New York Supreme Court Justice Samuel Dickstein announced he would not cite Lomakin for contempt of court. Last week, the Soviet consul ignored Dickstein's order to produce Mrs. Kasenkina in court.

Dickstein dismissed the habeas corpus writ today with the consent of Common Cause, Inc., the organization which had asked it. Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, who gave refuge to Mrs. Kasenkina after she intentionally missed the boat back to Russia, visited her today, at the teacher's request.

The countess said Mrs. Kasenkina asked for an Eastern Orthodox priest.

"Mrs. Kasenkina was too ill to see anyone else," the countess said. "But I told her not to get excited." She called the Metropolitan Theopolis, "a very quiet man and a good Christian" who will see Mrs. Kasenkina tomorrow."

On Illinois Farm

Radio Waves Seen Possible Fire Cause

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 20 (AP).—An Air Force technician raised the theory today that sabotage materials, ignited by radio waves, may be causing the strange fires on the Charles Willey farm near Macomb, Ill.

Lewis C. Gust of the office of technical projects at nearby Wright Field said an expert had been ordered to the Macomb area to test for "very high frequencies and short wave."

"It is our business to investigate such matters," Gust said. "Ordinarily, we wouldn't go so far afield, but the situation at Macomb was just too unusual to ignore. We weren't called in."

The Wright Field expert, he said, will test radio frequencies in the area to determine if any extremely high or short wave frequencies are being used.

"Suppose you had some material that could be ignited by radio and you wanted to test it for possible sabotage value," said Gust, "would you pick a city?

"No. You'd pick some out-of-the-way place, like the Willey farm."

Gust emphasized that the theory is just that—that Wright Field is interested primarily in proving or disproving the theory.

Two hundred fires—their origins unknown to authorities—have sprung up on the Willey farm. Three new ones struck last night. One destroyed a second barn. Two others, in a chicken house and a milk house, were put out by the elderly farm couple, who have been living in a tent near the site of their former home.

[The Willey family, which previously had expressed determination to remain on their farm, packed up and left after the second barn fire, the United Press reported.—Editor's note.]

Gust said radio-combustibles were possible.

"If it is true," he said, "we think it must be very high frequencies or short wave.

"We can't afford to take any chances. We must test anything, even if it sounds far-fetched. We don't miss any bets over here."

Variance in Spelling Name Is Explained

By the United Press

Now, about the spelling of Mrs. Oksana S. Kosenkina's name.

The name has been spelled several ways, because there are different ways of translating Russian into English. The American press has been spelling it Kosenkina.

The Russian Embassy here spelled it Kasenkina.

But the Russian Foreign Office in Moscow spelled it Kasyenkina. The extra "Y," linguists here said, apparently was because "E" in Russian is pronounced "ye."

State Dept. Denies Red Spy Story

By the United Press

The State Department yesterday quickly dismissed a report by the Soviet newspaper Pravda that United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith had "admitted" a former assistant naval attache in Moscow was a spy.

"Ambassador Smith has never reported any such thing to the State Department," said Press Officer Michael J. McDermott.

The former attache is Lieut. Robert Dreher of Oil City, Pa., who had arranged with Soviet visa officials to leave Moscow before the Russian government, through Pravda, accused him of espionage activities. Dreher is now assigned to the office of Chief of Naval Operations here.

Text of State Department Note Rejecting Red Protests

Following is the text of the State Department note rejecting the protests of the Soviet government in the case of the Russian school teachers and demanding the recall of Russia's consul general in New York:

The Department of State refers to the notes No. 143 of August 9, 1948, and No. 148 of August 14, 1948, of the Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republic and to the note which Mr. Molotov handed to Ambassador Smith in Moscow on the night of August 11, 1948, with reference to Mrs. Oksana S. Kasenkina and to Mikhail L. Samarine, his wife and three children.

In these communications and in the representations which the Ambassador has made to the Undersecretary of State, as well as in statements which have been made to the press by the Ambassador and Mr. Jacob Lomakin, the Soviet Consul General in New York City, charges of the most serious nature are made not only against individuals in this country, but also against the Government of the United States and State and Federal officials.

The reports of the investigation being made by the competent United States authorities which have been received by the Department of State are unsubstantiated, but also indicate that officials of the Soviet government have been engaged in conduct which is highly improper.

The United States Government must categorically reject the charges and insinuations contained in these notes, which have been found to be at complete variance with the facts. In this connection the Department of State desires to inform the Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics as follows:

MIKHAIL I. SAMARINE

According to reports of the investigation made by the competent authorities, Mikhail Samarine voluntarily appeared at the office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in New York and stated he did not wish to return to the Soviet Union, but desired to remain in the United States. After making this statement he left the office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation without leaving an address. He then made a statement to the New York Times, which was published in that newspaper on August 10, 1948, corroborating his statement to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. It is clear that Mr. Samarine is acting on his own volition and that he is free to get in touch with the Soviet consulate general or the Soviet Embassy at any time he wishes. No information has been produced to substantiate the allegation contained in the embassy's note of August 9 that Mr. Samarine and his family were forcibly removed from their apartment.

In the note which Mr. Molotov handed to Ambassador Smith on August 11, it was stated:

"On the 10th of August Undersecretary of State Lovett corroborated to the Soviet Ambassador in Washington that Samarine had been subject to examination by the Federal Bureau of Investigation which thus is found to be connected with the organization which kidnaped Samarine, his wife and three children."

The Ambassador will recall that on the occasion referred to the Undersecretary merely read a press clipping to the effect that M. Samarine had voluntarily visited the New York office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. This information does not in any way support the allegation that there is any connection between the organization referred to in the Soviet government's note as the Tolstoy Fund (presumably Tolstoy Foundation) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and this Government must categorically deny that any connection exists. Moreover, this Government has no information which would justify the statement that the Tolstoy Foundation is engaged in criminal activities as alleged in the embasy's note.

OKSANA S. KASENKINA

The reports of the competent United States authorities show that Oksana Kasenkina on July 29, 1948, informed the editor of a Russian language newspaper in New York City that she did not wish to return to the Soviet Union. Through him arrangements were made for her to go to Reed Farm, Valley Cottage, New York, which she did in a public autobus on July 31. According to her own statements, which are corroborated by the testimony of a number of persons, she went to the farm voluntarily and stayed there of her own free will. She has stated that she wrote to the Soviet Consul General in New York informing him where she was but she denies stating that she was kidnaped. The full text of her letter has never been made available to the competent United States authorities, although its production would have facilitated investigation of the charges made in the Embassy's note and it would have been appreciated if a photostatic copy were furnished to this department. This department would also like to receive a photostatic copy of the letter which the New York police authorities found in Mrs. Kasenkina's room at the Consulate General and which was returned to the Consulate General unopened after it was ascertained that she had jumped from a window of the Consulate.

Mrs. Kasenkina has further stated that the interview which she gave to the press on August 7 was arranged by the Consulate General and that she was instructed to make false statements to the effect that she had been kidnaped.

Mrs. Kasenkina was interviewed at the hospital by Vice Counsul Chepurnykh. As the Ambassador was advised on August 14, should she desire to see any other Soviet official she is completely free to do so, but this Government will not compel her to do so nor will it turn her over against her will to the Soviet authorities. This Government recognizes the right of Soviet officials in the United States to take appropriate measures for the protection of the rights of Soviet citizens. Such Soviet citizens are, however, themselves entitled to the protection of the applicable laws of the United States, and the Government of the United States cannot permit the exercise within the United States of the police power of any foreign government.

POLICE INSPECTION UPHELD

With reference to the Embassy's note of August 14, 1948, complaining of actions of the New York police authorities, this department is informed that after Mrs. Kasenkina had jumped from a window of the Consulate General on August 12, Consul General Lomakin agreed to the suggestion of police officers that they inspect Mrs. Kasenkina's room, as well as the room from which she jumped. This inspection was carried out in the presence of the Consul General. In view of the circumstances, the Department of State considers the actions of the New York police authorities entirely proper.

From the foregoing it appears that the representations of the Soviet government in regard to these cases have been based upon misinformation. In this connection the reports submitted to the Department of State show that the Soviet Consul General in New York, Mr. Y. I. Lomakin, after having made statements which were the basis of the serious charges against this Government and its officials, hindered the investigation of the competent police officials by refusing to allow them to interview Mrs. Kasenkina. The action was the more serious in view of the subsequent statements by Mrs. Kasenkina to the effect that she jumped from the window of the Consulate General in order to avoid having to return to the Soviet Union. In addition to the statement made by Mrs. Kasenkina that she was compelled to make in a press interview false statements which had been dictated to her, the Consul General has himself made or issued statements to the press which, in view of all the evidence available, the Department of State can only conclude were deliberately designed to mislead the American public in regard to a serious charge involving the United States Government. The United States Government considers that Consul General Lomakin's conduct constitutes an abuse of the prerogatives of his position and a gross violation of the internationally accepted standards governing the conduct of foreign officials. The Department of State is therefore requesting the President to revoke the exequatur issued to Consul General Lomakin, and it is requested that he leave the United States within a reasonable time.

Department of State.

U. S. Orders Consul Home

charged that Mrs. Kasenkina had been "kidnaped" by an anti-Soviet White Russian group in New York, had been rescued by Lomakin and then given protection in the Soviet consulate. He demanded "punishment" for all those responsible for the "kidnaping."

That very same day, Mrs. Kasenkina leaped from a third-story window of the consulate. She later charged that she had been "kept a prisoner."

Michael J. McDermott, State Department press officer, was asked at a news conference yesterday what would happen if Lomakin, fearful of going home, asked for sanctuary in the United States.

"That is a hypothetical question," he said. "I wouldn't hazard a guess."

He added:

"The present situation is that this man has offended the hospitality of the United States, and the United States doesn't want him here."

The United States note, which was handed to Soviet Ambassador Panyushkin, rejected all the "charges and insinuations" made by the envoy himself and by Molotov in connection with the Russian school teachers.

Besides accusing Lomakin, the note implied that others were to blame. It said that "officials of the Soviet government have been engaged in conduct which is highly improper."

Whether this applied to Ambassador Panyushkin was a question that was left unanswered officially.

Press Officer McDermott, asked what others were embraced by the word "officials," said:

"That's a good sentence. Those who wrote the note mean it."

McDermott, in reply to another question, said that the case was not yet closed. He pointed out that this Government, in its note, asked the Soviet government for photostatic copies of two of Mrs. Kasenkina's letters.

The prologue to the dispatch of the United States note was a series of talks between President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall.

The State Department, in making its own note public yesterday, also gave out the texts of two Soviet notes.

The first one, dated August 9, told of the "sudden disappearance" on July 31 of Mrs. Kasenkina and Mr. and Mrs. Samarin and their three children. They were ready to depart for Russia aboard the steamship Pobeda, the note said, and had all the necessary tickets and documents. For "reasons unknown" they did not show up at the dock.

On August 6, the note continued, Consul General Lomakin received a letter from Mrs. Kasenkina in which "she implored him to snatch her from the hands of the organization . . ." This was a reference to the anti-Communist colony at the Reed Farm, Valley Cottage, N. Y., operated by the elderly Countess Alexandra Tolstoy.

The note went on to tell how Lomakin went to the farm and took her away, despite attempts to detain her by force. It said that those at the farm applied a "narcotic injection" to weaken Mrs. Kasenkina and tried to induce her by threats not to return to the fatherland.

The note also charged that Samarine and his family also were "forcibly" carried away from their apartment in New York and taken to a farm in New Jersey on the night of July 30-31. On August 9, it added, Samarine was turned over to the FBI by the Tolstoy organization.

The note charged that the "kidnaping" of Citizens Kasenkina and Samarin was done with the "acquiescence of certain Government agencies of the U. S. A." It stated that the attitude of these American agencies toward the "criminal activities" of the Tolstoy organization was a violation of agreements reached in 1933, when the United States and Russia resumed relations.

The second Soviet note was dated August 14, two days after Mrs. Kasenkina jumped from the third floor of the Russian Consulate in New York.

This was a protest against the conduct of New York police, who, it was charged, "burst into the building of the Consulate General," after Mrs. Kasenkina had jumped, to learn the circumstances of her "suicide attempt."

"Instead of dealing with the Consul General," the note said, "the police inspectors, in spite of his protest, seized one of Mrs. Kasenkina's personal letters which was in her personal bag. The aforesaid persons attempted to search Kasenkina's room and to question employes of the Consulate General."

The note expressed the hope that the State Department, in the future, would take measures to protect the Consulate General from illegal acts by New York policemen and would assure the extraterritoriality of the building.

lodges in the courts; (3), that the committee was in effect trying them without using due judicial process; (4), that the committee was illegally established because of the membership of John Rankin (D., Miss.) whom the attorneys claimed was illegally elected to Congress; and (5) possibility of self-incrimination.

Pressman Makes Statement

Pressman told reporters he had one statement to make:

"I asked the chairman and Mr. Stripling, chief committee investigator, whether there has been any charge made before this committee stating that I, Lee Pressman, ever while a Government employe or since I left the Government service, engaged in espionage. Mr. Stripling stated for the record no such charge had ever been made."

Chamber at no time accused any of the group for which he once acted as courier of engaging in espionage; his group, he said, acted only as an elite band to influence policy of this government.

Chambers left the Communist Party in 1937 and, in 1939, two days after the Hitler-Stalin pact was signed, approached Adolf Berle, then Asistant Secretary of State, so that the Government could be warned. The Federal Bureau of Investigation subsequently inquired into Chambers' charges, but the result of their inquiry has never been made public.

In the original testimony before the House Committee Hiss said the then Secretary of States James F. Byrnes told him that there were reports that he (Hiss) was a Communist, that members of Congress were going to make speeches about it, and that apparently the FBI was the source of all the rumors.

Attorney Notified

Watson B. Miller, head of the United States Immigration Service, said that he had notified Carol King, New York attorney, to produce the alien, Peters, in a week or 10 days. Miller said he would notify the committee of the place and time of the hearing so it could subpena Peters.

Miller said he could not order Peters to appear as a witness before the committee. Nixon agreed with his interpretation of the law, but said it was just as satisfactory to be able to serve a committee subpena.

Under the law, Miller said, the Immigration Service can compel Peters' presence "for a hearing or hearings in regard to the charge upon which he has been taken into custody."

The charge is, Miller added, that Peters belongs to an organization advocating overthrow of the United States Government by force and violence.

In Important Posts

By the United Press

Soviet Consul Gen. Jacob M. Lomakin, whose recall was requested by the United States, is more than just an ordinary Soviet consular official.

Lomakin, who is 44, was assigned to New York in 1939 as a correspondent for Tass, the official Soviet news agency. He later entered the Soviet consular service, and served as consul general in San Francisco from 1942 to 1944.

From 1944 to 1946, he served in Moscow as assistant press chief of the Soviet Foreign Office.

In March, 1946, Lomakin was appointed special assistant to Andrei Gromyko, chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations Security Council. In that capacity he served U. N.'s subcommission on Freedom of Information and the Press, the U. N.'s Human Rights Commission and the Economic and Social Council.

In May of 1946, Lomakin was assigned additional duties as consul general of the Soviet consulate in New York.

This spring, he served as chief Soviet delegate to the Geneva U. N. Conference on Freedom of Information.

Civic Interest

When only 130 of all the students attending District high schools elect to take a course in civics, then manifestly something is wrong with the course. It is a curious commentary that at the time the American system is on trial before the world as never before, the specific study of the rights and responsibilities of American citizenship has been dropped by four high schools for lack of interest. There are, to be sure, several mitigating factors. Colleges as a general rule do not demand civics credit; a full year of American history is required of all students in District high schools, and doubtless elements of what is loosely termed "civics" are to be found in many other courses.

Nevertheless, it seems regrettable that more particular attention cannot be devoted to just what American citizenship means. Perhaps the answer is that too many civics courses have been perfunctory affairs, boring for the teachers and incredibly dull for the students. They have been dull because of insistence on dry statistics and precepts, exposure to which has been regarded as necessary to satisfy some abstract curricular requirement.

There ought to be some way, as we said in writing on Elizabeth Bentley's confession about her educational deficiencies, to insure that students will be inculcated with a fundamental grounding in the principles of American democracy, of parliamentary procedure, of the practical workings of government so that they will be able to interpret issues sensibly as they arise. Nor should it be necessary to glamourize such teachings, though use of a few modern techniques might help. Essentially the difference between unimaginative and uninteresting "civics" and the challenging study of contemporary political science is the difference between an approach based solely on textbooks and one that presents the subject as a course in living history.

Radio Religion

A group calling itself the Religious Radio Association has revived an ancient controversy by petitioning the Federal Communications Commission to clarify its stand on atheist radio programs. Three or four years ago, one Robert Harold Scott petitioned the commission to revoke the licenses of three California stations on the ground that they refused to make any time available to him, by sale or otherwise, for the broadcasting of talks on the subject of atheism, while permitting the use of their facilities for direct arguments against atheism as well as for indirect attacks in the form of religious programs. The commission did not revoke the licenses of the three stations. It did use the occasion, however, to remind broadcasters that "freedom of religious belief necessarily carries with it freedom to disbelieve, and freedom of speech means freedom to express disbeliefs as well as beliefs . . . The holders of a belief should not be denied the right to answer attacks upon them or their belief solely because they are few in number."

Thus the broadcasters are under a vague directive from the FCC to afford atheists some opportunity at least to defend themselves against attack. It is by no means an easy problem from the broadcasters' point of view. They have had trouble enough with competing claimants for time among proponents of religion—some of whom have proved mere mercenaries. Some broadcasters sell time for religious broadcasts, some give their facilities gratis to preachers of their choice, thereby inciting the resentment of those to whom the same facilities are denied; still others deal with the problem by devising and supporting religious programs of their own. One way or another they make available to the listening public a good deal of religion on the air.

The broadcasters have an obligation to serve the public taste and inclination as well as to provide a medium for the expression of conflicting ideas. This is not to say that atheism should be ruled off the air simply because it is unpopular; it is merely to note what must be obvious, that the public interest in a balanced program structure would scarcely be served by permitting atheists to reply every time someone advocated the worship of God. The prohibitionists could as rationally insist that they be allowed to answer every program promoting the consumption of alcoholic beverages. Plainly, however, no such construction of the FCC dictum in response to the Scott petition is warranted. The Religious Radio Association seems to be seeing ghosts. All that is required of the broadcasters is that they give bona fide organizations of freethinkers or atheists in communities where these exist a chance to rebut direct assaults upon their beliefs. Believers in religion will certainly suffer no hurt from affording such an opportunity for expression to those with whom they deeply disagree.

Issue In Sovereignty

When Jacob Lomakin realized the pickle he was in, and if he had had any choice in the matter, he would doubtless have preferred that the United States should bring him to trial, instead of asking for his recall. The Soviet Union is bound to take its own action against its blundering Consul General. Perhaps the State Department did not go to the lengths of a prosecution because of the number of Soviet officials involved in the kidnaping of the Soviet teacher, Kasenkina, from Countess Tolstoy's Reed Farm and the international commotion that would have been created. But the offense attributed to Lomakin was serious enough for reference to the courts. And the honor of the United States has never been more involved since the Citizen Genet case in 1793 when the authority of the United States as master in its own house was questioned.

All the Molotov charges against the United States are categorically rebutted by reference to the statements of the "victims" concerned. Both teachers, the man Samarine and the woman Kasenkina, acted of their own volition in seeking sanctuary at Reed Farm, N. Y. There was no kidnaping, contrary to what Molotov alleged, by a "White Russian gangster organization," and the suggestion is indignantly repudiated that the FBI is in any way connected with it. The Tolstoy Foundation itself is acquitted of any criminal activity. These statements could be proved by the production of the letter that Mme. Kasenkina wrote to Consul Lomakin from Reed Farm, but no aid in this respect has been accorded by the Consul General, and the inference is that the letter bears out the story of Mme. Kasenkina. She jumped out of the window of the Consulate General as the only way of getting out of the clutches of her abductors, thereby providing circumstantial evidence that Soviet officials snatched her from Reed Farm.

The State Department indictment against Lomakin for his "abuse of the prerogatives of his position" and "his gross violation of the internationally accepted standards governing the conduct of foreign officials" is conclusive even though it leaves out the charge of kidnaping Kasenkina from Reed Farm. Lomakin obstructed the police authorities in their investigation. A press interview was arranged in order that Mme. Kasenkina could give false witness. The Consul General has made statements designed "to mislead the American public in regard to a serious charge involving the United States." So, in fact, has Ambassador Panyushkin, and we think the State Department erred in not coupling Panyushkin's name with Lomakin's for recall from America. In our view the State Department behaved in a most undignified way in giving the Ambassador 1 hour and 40 minutes last Saturday for the purpose of elaborating a farrago of charges against the United States which existed only in his imagination. He should have been shown the door in less than a quarter of this time.

It would have been a healthy thing from the standpoint of all nations in the world if the United States had given marching orders to both Ambassador and Consul General. The Soviet Union was challenging the assertion of American sovereignty in America itself. To be sure, Soviet officials have the right to take appropriate measures for the protection of the rights of Soviet citizens. But the police power of the Soviet government does not extend to America, and Soviet citizens in the plight of Samarine and Kasenkina are entitled to the protection of American law. One would have a hard task in finding in the relations of equal powers a parallel for the impertinence of the Soviet Union in seeking to cover up its own outrageous conduct by extravagant charges against the United States.

Strange Democracy

As chairman of the National Democratic Committee, Senator McGrath has good reason, of course, to frown upon any criticism of President Truman in the press or on the air. No doubt a great deal of the comment on the President's activities in this political season has been unfair, partisan and irresponsible. But we can see no excuse for the Senator's implication, in a speech at a recent Democratic outing in Johnston, R. I., that he would suppress such criticism if he could. "These $100,000-a-year commentators," he is quoted as saying, "would not be allowed to exist under a truly democratic form of government."

Does the Senator mean to say that a man should be denied freedom of speech and of the press because he may have the good fortune of making a larger income? That seems to be his implication. If so, just where would he draw the line between citizens who should be privileged to express their political views and those who should not? And how could he possibly justify such discrimination in the name of democracy? Incidentally, if criticism of the President were coming only from $100,000-a-year commentators, we doubt that it would be an audible murmur amid the jangle of differing opinions that are conveyed to the public through the press and radio. Certainly it would be beneath the notice of a national party chairman. But freedom of expression is not divisible on an economic basis any more than it is on a political basis. If Mr. McGrath really intended to say that men should be muzzled because their wits have won them a large income, he is in need of some primary instruction as to the meaning of democracy.

Vishinsky's Fiat

For a new low in the Soviet view of a world based on law, commend us to Vishinsky's observation at the Belgrade conference on the administration of the River Danube. Every international court is politically motivated, he said, and not to be trusted—unless, of course, the judges are on your team. Why should a bunch of judges from Salvador, Mexico, Brazil and China be interested in Danubian disputes? It is pure fiction to believe that these judges are above politics. We are sorry we cannot put this in the first person, but so it is reported in the New York Herald Tribune, in one of the final dispatches from the conference by its Belgrade correspondent. There was a British protest against what was regarded as an aspersion on the character of the Hague Court, and Vishinsky accordingly withdrew any such aspersion, but added that he regarded justice as an instrument of national policy, whereas the British viewed justice as an eternal value transcending national interests.

There is no longer any excuse to be squint-eyed in mind in understanding the policy of the Soviet Union. It is all plain enough in the record. There is no longer the slightest effort made even to pay lip service to the ideals of the world community. A world resting on a code of law and behaving according to it is the end that all civilized men look forward to. It is regarded as the ultimate achievement, just as the national community developed out of the jungle into a society to which was remitted the disposition of man's disputes. Vishinsky won't even acknowledge that this is an aspiration. He won't even say "Yes, that's the hope, but in this imperfect world, with no law to speak of binding the nations together, power is your own criterion." Nothing could more clearly show the deep chasm between the Soviet way of life and the Western.

This does not mean that there is no option for humanity but war. Like can live with unlike, even in this air age. Power is an element in life like air and water, and always has to be taken into account, whether nations live under a system of law or not. The lesson of the Vishinsky comment is that likeminded nations must draw together for their own security and for the strengthening of their way of living. An Article 51 world, in other words, must become a reality in order to save what remains of a world community.

Inflation-Happy

Although everybody complains about the high cost of living, most people are enjoying inflation. For employment is at record levels, industrial wages are far above 1939 heights, even if allowance is made for interim increases in living costs, and farmers are enjoying prosperity such as they have never before experienced or imagined. The unfortunates living off annuities or lagging behind in the wage earners' race to keep up with price advances are a small minority whose presence does little to mar the picture of well-being and general prosperity.

There is no denying that inflation provides the kind of stimulus guaranteed to produce the conditions characteristic of good times. For as long as prices are going up, and people believe that they will go still higher, businessmen are spurred by prospects of rising profits to expand production, workers find it easy to obtain employment at higher wages, and farmers exert themselves to produce larger crops.

If the stimulus provided by inflation could be applied indefinitely, there would be no need to fear a return of depression and widespread unemployment. However, in the process of boosting prices, dislocations in the price structure occur that in time are bound to result in a redistribution of income giving rise to gross inequities. Moreover, inflation has to be fed by constant creation of new purchasing power in one form or another either by Government deficit financing or credit inflation. This is a process that eventually comes to an end. For it results in an accelerated loss of dollar purchasing power that in the final stages of inflation leads to a flight from currency to goods. When that stage is reached, economic chaos is not far behind. For that reason people who look beyond present prosperity and envisage future trouble are cheered by moderate price declines that reflect changes in market conditions. Such changes indicate that monetary inflation has not yet reached the stage at which it becomes a controlling and uncontrollable price factor.

The great danger is that downward price adjustments may get out of hand and lead to sudden sharp declines in prices that would bring about a general industrial recession. In view of the elaborate system of price controls applicable to agricultural products, that danger is not as great today as in former years. Nevertheless, there is always a doubt as to whether artificial price supports can be relied upon to hold in check the forces of deflation. That doubt finds expression in ill-concealed alarm caused by the latest reports of bumper crops and falling prices of farm products.

TRIPLE PLATE

The Infinite's being so wide
Is the reason the Powers provide
For inner defense, my bride,
For next defense, outside.

I make myself this time
Of wood, or granite, or lime
A wall too hard for crime
Either to breach or climb.

Then a number of us agree
On a national boundary,
And that defense makes three
Between too much and me.

'Armour's Departure'

In your excellent commendatory editorial of August 18, on the quiet resignation of Mr. Norman Armour from the temporary post he had taken in the State Department, you mention that "the wide-ranging knowledge which Mr. Armour acquired from his rich experience . . . would not come amiss amid the seething and striving and self-centeredness of the specialists" in the Government now "who know this and that" of their specialized fields of cabbages and cans, but nothing of the men or goats who eat them.

Your comment is so true. The present-day policy of Civil Service and of all Government departments is stupidly erroneous in believing that an economist or a specialist or a scientist in any one field is capable to administer any agency in any field. Specialists, like schoolmasters, know their subject better than the average layman but rarely know much of the outside world. It is the cause of much of the incompetence in our Government and of its many mistakes in domestic and foreign affairs. One of our greatest businessmen, who employed hundreds of specialists and economists in his many companies, once remarked that such men never knew anything else but their subjects or otherwise they would become rich, which none of them ever did.

We desperately need administrators who have had extensive general over-all experience in business or governmental affairs to handle our problems intelligently. Such men would know, of course, how to apply and to what extent any specialized needed information. An administrator or director should not be just an economist who specializes in figures on any commodity or business, or a scientist in chemistry who might blow us up. In our steel corporations, oil industries, in General Electric or General Motors the head managers are businessmen of over-all knowledge in their fields and not just glorified statisticians or specialists, nor are they lawyers or doctors who know nothing of business organization.

AAUW Appeal

The officers of the National Board of the American Association of University Women are within their legal rights in appealing, as they have announced they are doing, the decision of the United States District Court in the case involving their attempt to expel the Washington branch from the national association for declining to change its by-laws to conform to their wishes.

As the final decision in any event will be made by the national convention of the association; and as the outcome of the appeal, which cannot be heard before the October sessions of the courts, may not be known much before the convention next spring, the reason for the action is somewhat difficult to understand.

The court proceedings renewed by the appeal mean heavy expense, not only directly to the Washington branch, but indirectly to all AAUW branches. These funds are supposed to be used for educational purposes, for fellowships, research, and for the various activities of the association in the field of education. They were not intended to finance continuous litigation. Inasmuch as the national officers are quoted in the press as stating that the issue with which they are concerned will be "resolved completely" by the convention, their expenditure in litigation of the contributions made by the branches for other purposes would appear to be an unnecessary and unwarranted waste.

The real issue is reasonable autonomy for the branches, such as they have exercised in the past; or complete subserviance to the national board. That is the issue, not racial discrimination. The action of the Washington branch, by majority vote of the membership, in declining the application of a Negro was merely the occasion which precipitated the clash. In that majority are women who do not approve racial prejudice, but who believe that the way to overcome it is by constitutional methods, not by force or by illegal tactics. They believe in democratic procedures, and are opposed to totalitarian techniques for any purpose whatsoever.

On the matter of membership, the Washington branch is opposed to the view sponsored by officers of the present national board that the right degree from the right college and the necessary cash are all that may be required of any applicant for admission to any branch; and that no question may be raised as to character, integrity, loyalty.

Union in Europe

We have wisely offered to discuss with the Soviet not only the German problem, but the whole European situation. The solution of the German question politically and administratively is possible within the framework of a United States of Europe (all Europe if possible, western Europe alone if necessary).

The Europeans have reached their hour of destiny. With honor and vision only they can make the momentous decision to surmount all obstacles of nationalistic pride and prejudice and genuinely and unreservedly unite for self-preservation and survival of European civilization. In a world inhabited by two giant unions, the United States and the USSR, the separate states of Europe have become obsolete, extinct, and an anachronism. They will either become appendages of one or the other of the two powers or unite in a European federation.

For three years America has been wet-nursing them, but they have now completed their period of convalescence and recuperated enough to have acquired the moral staying power and dignity to stand on their own feet.

At the present they have failed to achieve even economic unity under the ERP. So far they have stubbornly and blindly refused to face the fact that the crucial decision—union now—is theirs alone to make. Their courageous response in this their hour of destiny and decision will automatically guarantee the moral, military and economic support of the people who long ago conceived the vision of a United States of America.

Prefabricated Housing

The letter in your columns of August 16 headed "Prefabricated Housing" seems to me to require a reply because it repeats a basic fallacy in the thinking on this subject which by constant repetition has come to be accepted as fact.

The letter starts with the positive assertion that "The obvious engineering answer to the housing problem lies in industrialized, i. e., shop fabricated housing." There is little question that the house itself (i. e., the structure and some parts or all of the equipment within it) can be more cheaply produced in that fashion. It is not necessary to dispute American engineering genius to question whether this alone will lower housing costs. The problem of producing housing (i. e., acquiring the land, erecting the structure in place with utility connections, roads and sidewalks, not to mention available shopping facilities, schools, churches and all other aspects of community life) is a far different and more complex matter. The job is not finished when the structure rolls off an assembly line but it is in the problem of distribution that all fabricating efforts, whether at factory or on site, have so far failed in lowering costs as contrasted to more conventional methods of housing construction. By distribution, I include the entire process of placing the completed house, ready for occupancy, in the hands of the purchaser.

While it is hoped that some way will be found to realize the goal of reduction in home costs, "realism" requires that we not ignore the clear evidence. There have been at least two almost conclusive cases in point in the last year.

First, an on-site fabrication project (i. e., where the prefabricating plant was established at the project) employing almost the identical engineering methods suggested by your correspondent and staffed by an exceedingly able organization set out to build a project of 1000 homes which it was estimated would be sold for at least $1500 below charges for conventional construction. It was an amazing engineering job and deservedly received wide acclaim. Unfortunately, the houses are now necessarily selling at a price no lower than competition. The head of this organization freely concedes that mechanized production does not result in lower cost.

To the same effect, Fritz Burns, president of the Kaiser-Burns Co. which set out to factory produce housing on a large scale, testified before a congressional committee that as a result of his experience he had concluded prefabrication produces houses more quickly but at slightly higher cost.

These two cases are not isolated examples. They are typical of all experience to date. The record of those companies which received governmental encouragement for factory production under the Wyatt program proves the point further.

The Federal Government, through RFC, now has, by loan to Lustron Corp., invested 255 million dollars in an experiment which should once and for all settle the question whether factory production will revolutionize housing. Unless that company can overcome the increase in distribution costs which in other similar operations to date has more than offset engineering savings in production costs, it is a good bet, on the evidence, that its houses in place will in the end sell at the same or even a somewhat higher price than conventional construction.

As one who has devoted the past 12 years to the so-called "housing problem" nothing would please me more than to be proven wrong in that prediction.

Clothes Or Gadget Choice

By Malvina Lindsay

Family Decision

THE FALL clothing problem, current concern of most households, is complicated this season, not by the "new look," but by the pinch of inflation and the increased payments families will have to make on new rugs or washing machines. The clothes dollar is scarcely worth half of its prewar value. Recently announced increases in price by woolen manufacturers, and wage increases in the shoe industry hold threat of further costs to the consumer. Yet in both men's wear and in shoes there is already marked consumer resistance.

However, there is a chance the clothing industry will get a break. As a result of the tightening of installment credit, some families may decide to spend their money on new apparel when they find themselves unable to make substantial down payments on durable goods.

If this happens, the clothing industry might repeat in a small way its coup of last fall when it drew the "new look" out of its hat and thus prevented its patrons from scampering off after the new household gadgets. This fall, however, no major fashion cycle is making its debut. The new styles that produced such a furore have been tempered down. Wardrobes are not being outmoded on a mass scale.

WHILE employment continues to rise and there is more money in circulation than ever before, buying has become more cautious and penny pinching. With food taking such a big share of the family dollar, what remains must be spent on an either-or basis—a new overcoat or a down payment on a new rug, a new dress or a new electric toaster.

Installment credit curbs will not be in operation for about a month, and fall apparel buying—for school children, college students and, in fact, most consumers—begins in August, and is going strong by early September. Therefore, the decision between clothes and durable goods may be postponed. But it is waiting round the corner.

Some cynical students of consumer spending hold that curbing installment credit will do little to decrease spending. They maintain that people will spend what money they have for whatever is in the market, if not one thing, then another. The woman discouraged over the payment terms on a vacuum cleaner will solace herself with a new hat; a man deterred by the cash requirements for a television set, will spend more on steaks, ball games, new shirts.

Yet the clothing industry isn't counting strongly on a shot in the arm from such spenders. Though dollar sales in many places are running ahead of last year (occasioned partly by increased prices) retailers are cautious about their inventories, worried over consumer attitudes toward prices. They know they haven't any spectacular "new look" to sell to women. And men have proved obdurate against efforts to convince them that the infiltration of the new fashion cycle into details of their attire requires purchases of new wardrobes.

HOWEVER, merchants are counting on this fall's simpler and saner versions of the new silhouette to help sales. They think customers will accept this season's clothes with less doubt, caution or protest than they manifested last year; will regard styles as safe, long-term purchases. Careful buying is particularly marked now in the apparel field. People may buy meat because they like it, passing up less costly proteins, but nonessentials in other fields suffer from buyers' resistance.

In clothing, customers are interested in value as they have not been for a long time. Improved quality at moderate price is the demand of the day. Getting it is another story. But quality or not, customers are turning to lower priced merchandise. A big spurt in reorders and production of popular priced fall dresses is reported.

Clothing sales may receive some impetus from the baffled buyers of household gadgets, but no revival of reckless spending in that field can be expected. The public seems to be in a down-to-earth mood in regard to its apparel. While it looks as if the Doe family will have some new clothes this fall, a large proportion of these will be homemade. Those that are bought will be purchased carefully and as economically as possible, and will lean toward the practical side. The more conservative look that fashion is giving women this fall reflects the general growing attitude of practicality in spending and living.

Lux Et Veritas

The way I get it, Mr. George Crosley arranged for a meeting between Whittaker Chambers and a man named Carl on a park bench about 1942. Mr. Chambers urged Carl to leave the Communist Party and work for a news magazine, but Carl said that, after all, he still had a little self-respect. Mr. Chambers, Carl, Mr. Crosley and an unidentified character named George Spelvin all burst into tears and left in an agitated state. OLD SUBSCRIBER.

The Iron Curtain

Rich, Esteemed Professor Full-Time Spy for Soviet

(This is the story of the former Russian code expert who exposed Stalin's spy ring in Canada in September, 1945. Much of it parallels testimony now being heard here by Congressional investigators.—Editor's Note.)

By Igor Gouzenko
Installment XIV

In Montreal something of a counterpart to Dr. Allan Nunn May, the British scientist who turned over atomic secrets to Soviet agents, was produced in Dr. Raymond Boyer.

Dr. Boyer, reputed to be a millionaire, was found guilty of giving the Soviet Union information pertaining to RDX, a super-explosive.

He had spent 7 years at Loyola College, 9 years at McGill University, a year at the Royal Military College and had taken postgraduate work at Harvard, the Sorbonne in France and Vienna University.

Zabotin's Description

He was described in Colonel Zabotin's notebook in this fashion:

"3. Professor. Frenchman. Noted chemist, about 40 years of age. Works in McGill University, Montreal. Is the best of the specialists on VV on the American continent. Given full information on explosive and chemical plants. Very rich."

VV was the Russian equivalent of high explosive and RDX was an abbreviation for a new high explosive. Canadian development was responsible for a new method of producing the explosive, and information on it was restricted to a definite list of authorized persons. RDX was kept on the secret list, even after the war.

Dr. Boyer began to work on RDX research at McGill in September, 1940. He told the Royal Commission that early in 1943 and continuing into 1944 he gave, for transmission to the Soviet Union, full information about his work.

The neatly groomed, refined and highly esteemed McGill professor caused a lot of Canadian eyes to open very wide as he made those admissions and others which showed he was a valuable Soviet agent.

Dr. Boyer was the extreme opposite to the poor and frequently ignorant laboring men who represents a major target for Communist plotters in democratic countries. Dr. Boyer had everything.

Using "Freedoms"

While I was part of the Soviet espionage ring in Canada, I used to marvel at how much our agents could achieve by making full use of the "freedoms" in a democratic country. Fred Rose, whose career as a Soviet agent was cut short by his third jail sentence, is a striking example.

Born in Lublin, Poland, in 1907, Fred Rosenberg was granted Canadian citizenship with all its freedoms, advantages and facilities in March, 1926. Yet, within three years, he had become national secretary of the Young Communist League. He went to Moscow for special instruction.

In 1927, his thorough training caused him to be welcomed into the select circles of the Communist Party of Canada.

It was beyond the comprehension of all of us at the Soviet Embassy how the voters ever elected the like of Rose to the Parliament on August 9, 1943, and then reelected him on June 11, 1945. But Zabotin rejoiced at having one of his most skilled agents in such a strategic spot.

Story of Fred Rose

Fred Rose, known to us in the military attache's as "Fred" and later, "Debouz," began working for the Soviet Union long back. When he was only 17 years old he had already worked for the NKVD.

Rose was also linked with an American named Steinberg, who operated under the cover name "Berger."

This is shown in one of the documents I took from the files of the military attache which reads:

"Steinberg—Berger, 4133

"Debouz is to tie up with Berger and depending on the circumstances is to make a proposal about work for us or for the corporation. Contact in Washington with Debouz's person. To work out arrangements for a meeting and to telegraph. To give out $600. If Debouz should be unable to go to United States of America then there should be a letter from Debouz to Berger containing a request to assist the person delivering the letter to Berger.

"12.5.45 22.00 St. Patrick and Cumberland."

Carr Head of Group

Carr was head of a group of agents—the "Ottawa-Toronto" group. The Royal Commission report on Carr stated: "It would not be difficult to conclude that he was sent to this country in 1924 as a professional Soviet agent and has acted continuously since that time."

What puzzled us at the Military Attache's was why an agent such as Carr operated so brazenly in the open. Angelov once asked Zabotin:

"Don't you think Carr should operate more cautiously? He makes little apparent effort to hide his work."

"Carr can take ca of himself," Zabotin replied with a shrug. "Study him closely and you will notice he makes a lot of noise about something he can do under democratic custom, but the noise is a smoke screen for his undercover work."

In Carr's dossier at the Military Attache's there is a copy of a "task" assigned him on June 15, 1945. Paragraph 4 reads:

"Is there any possibility for you of developing our work in the Ministry of National Defense, in the Ministry of Air, in the Ministry of the Navy or else in their military staffs?"

In another telegram to the "Director" dated August 2, 1945, from Zabotin, the second paragraph read:

"Sam promised to give us several officers from the central administration of the active forces . . ."

Document to Moscow

On Zabotin's mailing list later that month Carr's name appeared as the source of one document sent to Moscow which was described as "Biog. Govt. Workers." It consisted of 46 pages.

In August, Colonel Zabotin called me into his office.

"Moscow is again inquiring when you are returning," he said. "I'll be sorry to lose you, Igor, but this is it."

I was careful not to display any displeasure.

"Very well, Comrade Colonel. It will be good to see our relatives and old friends again."

Doubts began to assail me about the wisdom of my decision to steal documents on the spy ring activities. It would be so much easier to take Anna and Andrei, now 2 years old, and disappear. I discussed our crisis with Anna.

"I will not hear of you changing your mind," she said. "This is your chance to do something big for this country and yourself. Canada is to be our home. Let us not take everything and give nothing."

During the rest of August we discussed plans. The move, we decided, had to be made early in September.

Married Men and Farmers Granted Draft Deferments

maintains a bona fide family relationship, or a man whose induction could mean hardship to a dependent.

Dependents are defined as a wife, a divorced wife, a child, parent, grandparent, brother or sister, a person 18 years of age (or older if the person is physically or mentally handicapped) or, in short, anyone who depends on the draft-age men for a living or financial help.

Some points probably will be cleared up later, selective service headquarters said. As the ruling stands now, it merely says a married man is deferred, and does not set any specific dates for his marriage.

Consequently, men married between now and registration periods would be exempt, draft officials said.

IV-A—A registrant who has completed service, and sole surviving sons. (A sole surviving son is one of a family of which one or more sons or daughters were killed during the last war.)

IV-B—Almost all public officials elected to office, including the Vice President, State Governors, any official chosen by voters of the entire State (congressmen, for example), a judge of a court of record, a member of the legislative body of any State or territory or possession.

IV-C—Aliens.

Ministers Exempted

IV-D—Ministers of religion or divinity students. This means any duly ordained minister, or students preparing for the ministry under the direction of a recognized church or religious organization.

IV-E—Conscientious objectors opposed to both combatant and non-combatant service and training. (The law says an objector need not serve as a combatant in the armed services, but could as a non-combatant. Yesterday's ruling frees him from either service if he requests.)

IV-F—Physically, mentally, or morally unfit.

V-A—A registrant over the age of liability for military service.

One clause says that the draft director may "direct that eligibility for particular service be disregarded."

He may ignore any other provisions of the regulations, if he deems it necessary, and draft or defer men regardless of classification. Just what this means was not explained.

Starts In 10 Days

Registration will begin in 10 days, and will follow age groups:

Men born in 1922 after August 30 will register at local draft boards first of all on August 30. These are men of 25, and it is predicted that few of them will be called into uniform.

Next to register will be all born in 1923. Some will be 24, some 25, but all born in 1923 will register August 31-September 1.

Persons born in 1924 will register September 2-3; 1925, September 4 or September 7; 1926, September 8-9; 1927, September 10-11; 1928, September 13-14; 1929, September 15-16; and persons born in 1930 before September 19 register September 17-18.

Today's ruling said that classification questionnaires must be sent all registrants 19 through 25 almost immediately after registration.

Draft headquarters said yesterday that the 4000 or so local draft boards over the country are practically mpleted now, and that all registration and classification forms have been printed and mailed over the country.

Almost all of the draftees will go into the Army. The Navy, Marines and Air Force believe their ranks can be expanded through volunteers.

Conservation Issue In The Campaign

McCALL, IDAHO.—As we rode through wilderness country along the high mountain ridges in the Payette National Forest, we felt the presence of two vigorous ghosts. They hovered benignly over the dark, wooded slopes and the clear running streams that the sa d from blight and destruction.

Childs

These were the ghosts of Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot. Pinchot was the Father of Conservation in America. Roosevelt was the political godfather of the movement that saved large areas from ruinous forestation and the disastrous erosion that eventually means desert.

Working together 40 years ago, they got Congress to put the mountainous watc sheds in Federal ownership under supervision of the Forest Service. Out of that move, linked with other conservation measures, has come the whole development of irrigated farming and the industries related to it.

This is the heritage of the Republican Party if it only had the sense to know it. In laying the cornerstone of conservation, Roosevelt and Pinchot set a high precedent.

The Republican candidate for President, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, is planning to tour the West next month. He will have an opportunity to take hold of the conservation issue and restore the heritage of his party. And in reality he will be taking the popular side not only among convinced conservationists, but among most people in the West who understand how vital it is to preserve the base of the West's permanent well-being.

IN MY OPINION, conservation ranks as one of the three most important issues before the country. First, of course, comes the question of war or peace and the way in which America's foreign policy has been directed.

If a third world war should follow quickly upon the one that ended three years ago, then there would be little use to talk about conservation. The demands of a new war would carve so deeply into remaining resources as to jeopardize for all time the American standard of life.

But assuming that a fairly long period of peace is at least a possibility, then the issue of conserving and broadening our natural resource case ranks with the question of trying to control inflation and prevent a depression. The plundering of "Our Plundered Planet" must be halted if mankind is not to be reduced to the level of starvation existence.

On his Western trip Dewey can, of course, evade this great issue. He can pay lip service to conservation while at the same time talking about the need to relax overly severe bureaucratic controls.

That would please a few big ranchers and stockmen — the same little group that set out deliberately to undermine the public land policy. They are out to make a killing in this era of phenomenally high prices.

One can understand the force of this motivation. The boom is something! A lamb on the hoof brings $30. A big sheep operator expressed it by saying that he felt as though he were growing orchids.

Some of the money to feed the boom comes, ironically enough, from Government sources. This potato State will get a sizable share of the millions being paid out in subsidies to potato growers.

PART OF IT will go to such big time boys in Idaho as Jack Simplot, whose millions, made during the past seven or eight years, are already a new get-rich-quick legend. The Government pays $2.40 a hundred pounds for "surplus" potatoes and sells them for $2 a ton to be converted into animal fodder.

If Dewey evades the conservation issue, he will leave a feeling of puzzlement and anxiety among those who are hoping that he will provide leadership. It will take some courage to speak out. Dewey will have to go against those Republican Senators and Congressmen who have followed the wishes of the minority—the big stock raisers.

In all this is a challenge which Dewey, the administrator, the skilled public servant, should welcome. It is a challenge for a big man.

Written in sky-high letters is this impressive fact out of history: No civilization has ever been able to organize a watershed-irrigation system so that a permanent way of life could be based on it. And history is littered with the wreckage of societies that failed from the Euphrates Valley to our own continent and the destruction that overwhelmed the high civilization of the Incas.

In the book of history the page of failure is written with a record of desert and famine, swift decay and obliteration beneath the shifting ocean of sand. Here is a challenge, not for one man alone, but for a whole society that stands at the dividing line.

What is STALIN REALLY LIKE?

What manner of man is this who wields absolute power of life or death over 200,000,000 persons—and at whose whim the world might be plunged into a third global conflict? How did his destiny shape itself from boyhood to today? What are his individual traits?

At last the story of "The Real Stalin" has been written by the dean of modern biography, Emil Ludwig. Famous for his masterful works on Napoleon, Bismarck, and Roosevelt, Ludwig now dissects Stalin's character in two drama-packed Sunday Post articles, beginning tomorrow.

You'll read what Ludwig discovered about Stalin during years of close observation. You'll learn what the Soviet leader said of his own career and fate in one of the few personal interviews he ever allowed. Your eyes will be opened by many hitherto unpublished episodes in his turbulent history.

What explains Stalin's aggressive behavior in a world struggling for peace? Is he a true communist, or a power-thirsty megalomaniac? On what basis does Ludwig call him a man with "neither a religion nor a philosophy?" Get the answers from these two articles.

Hamilton Bank Will Erect New 20th St. Branch

By S. Oliver Goodman

As soon as a building permit is obtained, Hamilton National Bank expects to start construction of a new building to replace the present branch at 20th st and Pennsylvania ave. nw., President Wilmer J. Waller said yesterday.

The new structure, which will more than triple the present branch's space, should be completed and ready for business by next summer, Waller anticipates.

Plans have been drafted by the Bank Building & Equipment Corp. of St. Louis and contract will be submitted for Hamilton's final approval next week.

Waller said business of the branch will be uninterrupted while construction progresses on a lot adjacent to the present building on the 20th st side.

The new 46x100-foot structure, fronting on 20th st., will be one-story and basement. Provision has been made for the addition of more floors when the need arises. The old building will be razed after completion of the new one.

Originally, the branch bank was known as the Exchange Bank of Washington. It successively was a branch of the Merchants Bank & Trust and the Federal-American until it was taken over in 1933 by Hamilton National.

Hamilton, one of the Washington's largest financial institutions, operates eight branches in addition to the main office on 14th and G sts.

LAW SUITS: The ill-fated Kaiser-Frazer stock issue has sprouted so many law suits that the public relations representative for Otis & Co. has distributed a 14-page explanatory booklet to help keep them straight. The summary reviews eight suits involving Kaiser-Frazer; two suits involving Graham-Paige (which sold some assets to K.-F.), plus four Washington investigations.

ODD LOTS: Development of a new-type microfilm recorder which photographs both the front and back of a document simultaneously was announced by Bell & Howell Co. . . . W. Chalmers Burns, president of Richfield Oil Corp., has retired and will be succeeded by M. F. Braeckel . . . Edward R. Phelps, former director of OPA's food price division, has resigned as assistant secretary of the National-American Wholesale Grocers Association . . . Kennecott Copper Corp. has declared a special dividend of $1.25 in addition to the quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, both payable September 30 to stock of record September 1 . . . Commerce Department reports that July independent retail sales dropped 8 per cent below June but were 9 per cent more than a year ago.

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in week ended August 14 spurted 13 per cent over the like 1947 period, but showed a 5 per cent decline compared with the previous week this year. For the four weeks ended August 14, local sales were 7 per cent improved over the same period last year. Figures were reported last night by Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Truman Embarks On 9-Day Cruise

President Truman, off on a nine-day cruise in preparation for political campaign battles, rested on the presidential yacht Williamsburg in the lower Potomac last night.

The White House said that the yacht anchored for the night at 6:15 p. m. (EST) off Blackistone Island, near Chesapeake Bay, and the President promptly took a 10-minute swim in the river.

The trip was to get under way again this morning at 6:30. Patuxent, Md., where there is a naval air station, is the next stop scheduled for the President.

5 Speeches in Michigan

At the end of the trip on August 29, he will spend a week at the White House before opening his drive for a full four-year presidential term with a one-day, five-speech swing in doubtful Michigan on Labor Day.

The President's original schedule of six speeches in Michigan was cut to five yesterday. Hamtramck was eliminated because it was found that this town, in the Detroit area, could not be included and a smooth-running schedule maintained.

The main speech Labor Day will be at Detroit about 12:30 p. m. (EST). Other talks will be at Grand Rapids, Lansing, Flint and Pontiac.

The President embarked at the Navy Yard on the yacht Williamsburg shortly before lunch.

Asked if he would cut short his trip if the international situation warranted, Mr. Truman replied he would "if it is necessary."

He added, however, that he will be "just as available aboard this ship as I would be at the White House and can transact any necessary business."

The President left without accompanying newsmen for the first time in many a day. Reporters had tried unsuccessfully all week to charter a boat, but they were still contacting ship captains hours after Mr. Truman departed.

There were nine others in the President's party. They included Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, Clark M. Clifford, special counsel and speech writer; William D. Hassett, mail secretary; John R. Steelman, assistant to the President; Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, his Chief of Staff, and Brig. Gen. Walluace H. Graham, his physician.

Also in the party were his three aides, Capt. Robert L. Dennison, Navy; Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Army, and Col. Robert B. Landry, Air.

17 Men Killed In So. Dakota Plane Crash

Rapid City, S. Dak., Aug. 20 (AP).—Seventeen men were killed late today when a B-29 crashed and burned in a wheat field just off the edge of the Air Force field.

Capt. Thomas Siegler, information officer said 17 bodies were recovered from the wreckage, which burned for an hour and a half.

The heavy bomber, attached to the Twenty-eighth Bomb Wing, was taking off on a training flight when it crashed shortly before 4 p. m. (MST). Captain Siegler said all aboard were killed.

Siegler said the plane was about to take off when one left engine caught fire. The pilot was forced to feather his propellors and the plane lost speed. It had barely left the ground. Just as it passed the edge of the runway, it banked to the left, the left wing hit the ground and the plane turned over and burst into flames.

The plane burned for more than an hour.

George Nichols, Ogden, Utah, who witnessed the crash, said it appeared to him the pilot had attempted to turn to the left and then changed his mind just before the ship's nose struck the ground.

crashed into the Chesapeake Bay off Plum Point, about half-way between Annapolis and Patuxent, at about 3:30 p. m.

At the controls was Ensign Coty Arthur Hynson of Baltimore, who was on two-week training duty with the Naval Air Reserve training unit at the Anacostia Naval Air Station.

Witnesses said Hynson flew low over the water in a simulated bombing run and apparently was unable to pull out of his dive in time.

Darkness prevented the Navy from making a thorough search of the area. However, plans were mapped to send special craft and divers to the scene today.

Hynson, according to the Navy, was a native of Columbia, S. C., was unmarried and had listed his next of kin as his mother, Mrs. Katherine Hynson.

Air Force Lieut. Stanley J. Boren of 165 Danbury st. sw., who had taken off from Bolling in an F-51 at noon yesterday, escaped with his life when his plane crashed at 5:08 p. m. (EDT) near Marion, Ill.

The pilot wired back to his base: "Ship demolished in landing. I am okay."

Bolling Field officials said Boren had refueled at Dayton, Ohio, after leaving here, then had continued on to Scott Air Base, 40 miles east of St. Louis. He was returning to Washington at the time of the crash.

$3,000,000 Deal Approved

District Commissioners ruled yesterday that a New York real estate firm may sell the three-million-dollar Washington Gas Light Co. property at Virginia ave. and 26th st. nw., provided it employs a local auctioneer to do the actual selling.

The ruling was made on the advice of Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West after the Commissioners refused the firm, Joseph P. Day, Inc., of New York City, permission to auction the property.

District regulations require that auctions in the Distrirt be conducted by locally licensed auctioneers.

BOTTLES IN BOND—Some 4100 bottles of drinking alcohol were taken by police in raids on three after-hour clubs in the early hours of yesterday. At Police Headquarters, Pvt. left Union Station. At 3:45 a. m. the sorties began.

In all cases the raids were carried out without excitement. As soon as police entered, police photographers took pictures of the scene.

Patrons were asked to identify themselves and police recorded their names and addresses. Only one of the customers was arrested. He was taken into custody at the Allies Club because he had no identification papers or cards on his person, but later was released.

Six of 17 Released

Police arrested 17 officials and employes, later releasing 6 of them.

The police squad that raided the Five O'Clock Club was led by Inspector Clarence Lutz, assisted by Capt. Howard Covell of No. 1 Precinct.

Those arrested and later charged at the Five O'Clock Club were William G. Benjamin, 34, of 7601 Wildwood dr., Takoma Park, Md., president of the club; Mary Jane Dowd, 22, of 3035 M st. nw., a waitress; Amelia Swann, 33, of 1341 Adams st. ne., a waitress, and Frances Morton, 26, of 1436 B st. se., cashier.

The Allies Club raid was led by Inspector George Wallrodt who was assisted by Lieut. William Rector of No. 2 precinct.

Allies Club Arrests

Arrested at the Allies Club were Stanley Gordon, 47, of 1326 Massachusetts ave. nw., president of the club; Louis W. Strickland, 51, of 1301 Vermont ave. nw., vice president; Thomas G. McGee, 39, of 1120 Vermont ave. nw., bartender, and Mary Louise Stephens, 26, of 3500 13th st. nw., a waitress.

Inspector William Cunningham, assisted by Lieut. John E. Winters of No. 3 Precinct, led the raid at the Spotlight Club.

They arrested Vincent R. Grillo, 45, of 2564 University pl. nw., owner of the club; Mary Ethyl Stoltz, 27, of 1012 Bryant st. nw., a waitress, and Gerald R. Baldy, 22, of 2224 S st. se., a bartender.

The 11 persons were all charged with illegal sale and possession of liquor. They were arraigned shortly after 10 a. m. in Municipal Court before Judge John P. McMahon who continued their cases until August 31. Each was freed in $500 bond.

According to Lieut. Blick vice squad undercover men have been visiting after-hours clubs throughout the city for the past 3½ weeks seeking to make purchases of liquor as nonmembers.

About two weeks ago a delegation of owners of licensed drinking spots in restaurants and hotels called upon Alan W. Payne, chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, and complained that the unlicensed after-hours clubs offered them unfair competition.

Payne informed the delegation he could act only against places licensed by the ABC Board and suggested they call upon the Commissioners. In turn, the Commissioners sent them to see Major Barrett.

While police mapped the raids, undercover men visited the clubs and allegedly made purchases of liquor as non-members, using marked money.

Personalized Bottles

The 4100 bottles of booze, some of them only partially filled, were taken to the police property clerk's office in the basement of the police headquarters. Each container was individually sealed. Blick said most bore names, presumably of members.

Blick said his men have visited other after-hours clubs in town and hinted there may be future action against some of them. He estimated there are 75 after-hours spots, large and small, in the District.

The after-hours clubs in Washington do a big business. Chief Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King was asked by a reporter if he though their annual business would top $100,000 a year.

"Oh, much more," said King.

Dewey's Italy Plan Angers Ethiopia

Ethiopia expressed "profound resentment" yesterday over Governor Thomas E. Dewey's proposal that Italy be allowed to administer her former African colonies under a United Nations trusteeship.

The Ethiopian legation here issued a statement calling Dewey's proposal "unfair" and declaring that the Ethiopian government never will agree to the return of Eritrea and Somaililand to Italy "under any guise."

"These territories are in all respects Ethiopia's and they must be restored to Ethiopia," the legation insisted.

Dewey told an Italo-American group in Albany this week that he favors letting Italy administer her former African colonies—which also include Libya—under a U. N. trusteeship.

President Truman, commenting on Dewey's statement at his news conference Thursday said that under the Italian peace treaty the disposition of the former Italian colonies is up to the United States, Russia, Britain and France. If they cannot agree before the U. N. Assembly meets in Paris next month, he said, the Assembly itself must consider the question.

At any rate, he declared, the matter cannot very well be handled politically in this country.

Dewey's secretary thereupon announced that the Republican presidential nominee intends to speak out on foreign affairs as he sees fit.

Bells Over Nation To Salute Council

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Hourly ringing of church bells here and elsewhere across the Nation Sunday will salute the opening of the First Assembly of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam, Holland.

The bell ringing ceremony will begin at 2:45 p. m. (Dutch Time) in Holland, where representatives of 148 Protestant and Orthodox churches from 42 countries will be meeting to form the World Council.

At 9 a. m. (EDT), bells in churches along the Eastern seaboard will join simultaneously in the chiming to remind Christians to pray for the success of the council.

Seven Here Join

At least seven Washington churches will participate. They are Albright Memorial Church, 4th and Rittenhouse sts. nw.; Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., and the following Episcopal churches: St. Alban's, Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves. nw.; All Saints, 3 Chevy Chase Circle; St. John's, Georgetown; St. John's, Lafayette Square, and Congress Heights.

As the sun travels westward, churches in each time zone will relay the celebration to the western reaches of Alaska.

By 3 o'clock the echo will have reached its full pitch, with bells in more than 300 cities and towns ringing simultaneously. Long after bells on the East Coast have been silenced, a final salute will be rung by the First Presbyterian Church in Anchorage, Alaska.

The American committee for the World Council of Churches, which launched plan, reports that more than 10,000 churches in cities and towns have planned special observances for the day.

Late in July, Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., and chairman of the World Council of Churches Committee of the Washington Federation of Churches, reminded members of the federation about the gathering.

"We are hoping that each church will include in its program on that day some reference to this very historic gathering; and that prayers shall be offered for its success in bringing unity to a divided world," he wrote.

At Dr. Pruden's church on Sunday, the Rev. Edward R. Dowdy, associate minister, will lead the congregation in a service marking the convention. At 9:45 and 11 a. m. he will speak on "This Day of Destiny."

The Rev. C. T. Warner, rector of St. Alban's Episcopal Church, sent post cards to each member of his church this week, asking them to devote a few moments of silent prayer to the council.

At 10:45 a. m. at Albright Memorial Church, the Rev George E. Schnabel will use a service of praise and prayer prepared for the day by the International Council of Religious Education. His sermon topic will be "My Christians, You Are One."

Other churches will mark the day with special prayers.

New Rector Of Epiphany

THE VERY REV. LELAND W. F. STARK,

'Repent Draft' Idea Received Coldly Here

Sunday has been designated by a group of Protestant clergymen as "a day of mourning and repentance" in protest against the draft.

The National Council Against Conscription, 1013 13th st. nw., issued a statement calling for the protest on August 9. A reporter was told at that address yesterday the office has been closed for the summer.

In their statement the clergymen charged that, to many, peacetime conscription is a "dangerous and iniquitous measure." They said the draft is a further step in the process "of placing the military in control of crucial areas of American life."

Earlier in the week, the Washington Friends Joint Service Committee sent a letter to 200 Washington churches calling attention to the statement.

Elton Atwater, chairman of the Friends committee, told The Washington Post yesterday, that no replies to the letter have been received.

Dr. J. M. Dawson, executive secretary of the joint conference committee on public relations for the Baptists of the United States, was the only Washingtonian who signed the statement.

Dr. Dawson also said he had heard nothing from local clergymen about the proposed observance. He pointed out that many regular ministers are on their vacations.

He said guest preachers might hesitate to bring up the matter without authorization from the pastor of the church.

Among the signers of the statement were Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Dr. John Haynes Holmes, and Bishop W. E. Hammacker.

Rev. W. H. Harrison Scheduled to Preach

The congregation of Miles Memorial Methodist Church, 1110 3d st. nw., will hear the Rev. W. H. Harrison at 11 a. m., Sunday. At 8 p. m. the fourth in a series of meetings led by the Young Peoples Council will be held.

After 24 Years

Pastor Quits At Wallace Memorial

Dr. C. E. Hawthorne, pastor of Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, New Hampshire ave. and Randolph st. nw., for the past 24 years, has resigned to accept a pastorate in Iowa.

Hawthorne

Dr. Hawthorne resignation becomes effective September 12. He will assume his new duties in Clarinda, Iowa, on Sept. 19.

He came here in 1924 to succeed the Rev. J. Alvin Campbell, who was minister of the church for 13 years. A graduate of Tarkio College in Missouri and Xenia Seminary, Xenia, Ohio, he formerly held pastorates in Pitzer and Albia, Iowa.

He originated a successful summer Bible school at Wallace Memorial and a winter series of Wednesday night meetings for youth and young people. Under the guidance of the church, a large number of young people have gone into the ministry and missionary work.

During Dr. Hawthorne's ministry, the church was able to burn its mortgage, and to build the educational section of the church building.

He is a former president of the Washington Federation of Churches and was on the board of directors of the Gospel Mission and the Wabanna Bible Conference.

A pulpit committee has been selected by the church, but no successor has been considered.

At 11 a. m. Dr. Browning will speak on "The Greatest Mistake in the Universe" and at 8 p. m. on "Playing the Game of Life."

Foundry workers in Christian education will begin their third annual weekend retreat at Holiday House, near Alexandria, on Friday at 6:30 p. m. The retreat is sponsored by the Church School and is under the direction of Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, superintendent, and the Rev. Ralph C. John, assistant minister.

Mrs. O'Neal Johnson, secretary of children's work for the Presbytery of Washington City, will lead the discussions with those who work with children. The youth division will have as its leader the Rev. William Wesley Dodge, minister of the Methodist Church at Ridgeville, Md., and youth director of the West Washington District.

Dr. James H. Phillips, former associate minister of Foundry and now a member of the faculty of Duke University, will counsel workers in the young adult division.

Harold M. Stackhouse, executive vice president of the Organized Bible Class Association, will lead workers in the adult division in their study and plans for the coming year.

The Mizrachi organization of Washington and the Women's Mizrachi organization will celebrate the establishment of Israel at a banquet at 7 p. m. September 19 at the Hotel 2400, 2400 16th st. nw.

The banquet is under the supervision of the Rabbinical Council of Washington. Among those expected to attend are Rabbi Wolf Gold, vice president of the Israel governing council, Elihau Epstein, Israel's minister to the United States, Representative Arthur G. Klein, and Mrs. Nachman H. Ebin, vice president of the Women's Mizrachi Organization of the United States.

Dr. Daniel G. Hill, dean of the chapel at Howard University, will speak at 11 a. m. at Metropolitan A. M. E. Church, 1518 M st. nw., at 11 a. m.

Dr. Larman Sherwood, blind preacher from Rotterdam Junction, N. Y., will speak on "Our Source of Assurance" at 11 a.m. at Hamline Methodist Church, 4501 16th st. nw.

The last in a series of summer meetings for young people will take place Sunday at 6 p. m. in the garden of Sidwell Friend's School, 3901 Wisconsin ave. nw. Dr. Albert T. Mollegan, professor of Christian Ethics at the Virginia Theological Seminary, will speak on "Russia and an Interpretation of Communism."

The series of five meetings has been sponsored by the Washington Federation of Christian Youth for all young people whose youth groups do not meet during the summer.

"What Can Christianity Do for Me?" will be the sermon topic of Chaplain Rowland C. Adams at 11 a. m. at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

A litany in procession will be part of the 11 a. m. service at the Washington Cathedral. The Rev. George J. Cleaveland, canon librarian, will preach at the service.

2d Baptist 100 Years Old On Nov. 12

Second Baptist Church, 816 3d st. nw., this fall will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its founding, the Rev. J. L. S. Holloman, pastor, has announced.

The church was founded November 12, 1848. Since then at least five churches have been established by former members of Second Baptist. They are Mount Carmel Baptist Church, Rehoboth Baptist Church, Mount Olive Baptist Church, St. Paul Baptist Church, Bladensburg, Md., and First Baptist Church, Takoma Park.

Members of these churches will join in the anniversary celebrations, Dr. Holloman said.

Two ministers have served the church during the past 65 years. Dr. William Bishop Johnson was pastor from 1883 until 1916. During his 32 years as minister, he led the congregation in building its present church on 3d st. Dr. Holloman has been pastor since 1917.

Among the highlights in the centennial celebration are: Homecoming Day, October 3; joint service with members of Nineteenth Street Church, November 15; concert by the Southernaires, November 12, Men's Day, November 7.

Also, Centennial Rally Day, November 21; joint evening service with Second Baptist Church, 17th and East Capitol sts., November 21; centennial sermon by the Rev. William P. Hayes, pastor of Bethany Baptist Church, Newark, N. J., November 28, and a centennial banquet, November 30.

Decentralization Successful at G. M.

management are carried from the central governing group straight to the assembly line, so also there is an upward flow of ideas, experience and suggestions from the assembly line through all intermediate officials and divisional managers to the two ceneral committees on policy and administration and to the top executives. This is referred to as a two-way flow of intercommunication, and it is profoundly educational to every worker and to the whole echelon of his superiors.

Alive and Cooperative

This two-way flow of human relations keeps this enormous bureaucracy alive, informed, and cooperative. It plays a vital part in encouraging initiative, developing self-reliance and talent while stimulating a spirit of competition that is as conducive to efficiency as to personal interest and satisfaction

Top management lays down the course of action and coordinates it. But its results are achieved through the exercise of individual judgment by the thousands of executives who carry out policies and administrative responsibility. Thus policy never becomes rigid, since it is constantly enriched by the interpretation it gets from the men who actually carry it out in the light of existing and ever-changing circumstances.

The prevalent idea that the worker is confined to one operation on the assembly line and subjected to monotonous slave labor has thus become outmoded in General Motors. The personal supervision, the adjustment of the worker to his job, to change of work and the changing tempo of work, are a constant challenge to him. That some repetitive jobs must exist is inevitable, especially on the final production line. But it is also true that many workers enjoy repetitive motions and reject responsibility and the chance for promotion which others may eagerly welcome.

But whether the work is repetitive or not, the worker's pride in his job and his sense of status are satisfied by helping him to see the relationship of his contribution to the finished job, by listening to his suggestions for technological improvements and by explaining to him what management is doing to make his work more effective.

By encouraging worker satisfaction and initiative, General Motors not only increases efficiency but avoids rigidity in the production line. For rigidity at the lower levels is bound to creep like a growing paralysis through the whole organization.

Ideas a Challenge

On the other hand, the ferment created by the constant flow of ideas, experience and knowledge upward toward the coordinating central management is also a challenge which only highly competent people would accept or could handle successfully. For the central management must weld all the experience of its 37 divisions into a general policy that is more productive than any of the separate entities could be, if it acted independently. For if each division general manager could function just as efficiently by himself, there would be no reason for the existence of the corporation.

For the same purposes of economy and efficiency General Motors has and must have centralized financial policies. This leads some economists to discount local managerial autonomy. Every wage rate in the various plants must be approved centrally. But this merely parallels the centralized organization of the union which makes a uniform wage scale obligatory.

Prices are raised simultaneously, as was again recently the case, by approximately the same percentages in all the car-producing units. Yet this was not done without consultation with every manager of a car division, with the policy committee and other officials.

Just as our Federal Government has a Budget Bureau whose powers could be abused by an over-centralization of executive powers, so the central financial controls of General Motors would become dangerous to local administrative independence, were it not for the democratic checks and balances that are inherent in its very structure.

That the plant managers are satisfied with the practical and the democratic aspects of General Motors' policy of decentralization, was confirmed in a conversation I had with Joseph A. Anderson, works manager of the A. C. Spark Division at Flint, Mich., who has been in the company's employ for 24 years, having worked his way up to his present position from the production line.

Veteran Management

"If you look over the managers in General Motors' 37 separate operating divisions, you'll find that all but two or three have been in the service of the corporation from 22 to 39 years," said Anderson.

"That means they worked their way up just as I did from the bottom of the ladder. Knudsen did that and so did Mr. Wilson, who is president now. Decentralization has other advantages. The more small plants you have in different parts of the country, the more community good-will. People like to buy a homemade product. Numerous smaller plants also means more competition in results.

"Once a month we have a meeting of division managers of all branches where we swap ideas. The corporation is very liberal. It doesn't tell us how to operate except along very broad lines. For example, we're free to buy parts from each other or not.

"Take the question as to whether we increase the capacity of an existing plant or start another. When such a problem arises, everybody who is involved has his say, and an impartial study of the facts will give the answer. These decisions are democratically arrived at, because everybody has to feel that the outcome is fair.

"It is this feeling of fairness that does away with petty personal rivalry and personal ambitions that might conflict with the good of the corporation. Everybody can criticize but nobody throws his weight around, not even the top bosses.

"This decentralized democratic system of our is the best possible source of efficiency, leadership and team work. This team work includes our dealers all over the country. We think decentralization is not only good industrial and economic management but that it parallels the democratic ideal of local self-government.

"It is the answer to most of the problems not only of American industry but of American government. What's more, it's the only answer I know to overall economic planning and the planned socialist state."

Truman Asks Courts Act in Dock Strike

President Truman yesterday ordered emergency court action to block an East Coast strike of 45,000 AFL longshoremen set for midnight tonight.

The Justice Department will seek a Federal Court order in New York today that would keep the men working for about 80 days—or until November 9, if the dispute is not settled before.

Mr. Truman acted under the "national emergency" provision of the Taft-Hartley Law.

Disputes Unsettled

In the first, court orders were obtained June 14 to prevent a group of CIO unions from striking on all seacoasts. Those orders are due to expire about September 2. Some of those unions still have not settled with employers.

Under the law the Government is not empowered to go into court until the President has received the report of an inquiry board.

In the case of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, the White House made public yesterday the report of an inquiry board he appointed Tuesday, composed of Saul Wallen of Boston, chairman, Joseph Miller, of Washington, and Julius Kass of New York.

The board said the strike is "imminent."

It reported that the major stumbling block to an agreement between the union and the waterfront employes is the question of "overtime on overtime."

It said the achieving of a peaceful agreement was "complicated" by a decision of the Supreme Court on that subject June 7.

Here is the difficulty: The longshoremen are paid a certain straight-time rate, $1.75 an hour, for regular hours, Monday through Friday. They get a higher rate of pay, $2.62½ an hour, for all hours worked at night, or on Saturday and Sunday, regardless of how many hours a week are worked.

On top of this, the wage-hour law requires an employer to pay at the rate of time-and-one-half for hours over 40 in a single week.

Up to now, this time-and-one-half rate has been calculated on the basis of the week-day regular rate of $1.75 an hour.

But the Supreme Court ruled that in computing time-and-one-half after 40 hours, companies must use as a basis not the straight week-day rate but the average amount per hour a man actually gets for the first 40 hours.

For men who work at night or on weekends, this average amount naturally is greater than the regular rate — and the resulting time-and-a-half after 40 hours is that much higher.

The companies are balking at the added cost.

Parts Plant Strike Idles 27,000 Workers

Detroit, Aug 20 (U.P.)—The Chrysler Corporation announced today parts shortages will idle 27,000 Dodge division workers next week, bringing the number idled in the industry to above 75,000.

A ten-week strike by 3500 CIO United Auto Workers at the Campbell, Wyant & Cannon foundry at Muskegon, Mich.; was blamed. The walkout cut off cylinder block, camshaft and other supplies.

Radio Union Rejects $12.50 Wage Increase

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—A CIO Radio Operators Union today turned down a $12.50-per-month wage boost proposal made by a group of shipping companies, a Federal mediator said.

The union, the American Radio Association, represents some 1000 ship radio operators. The ARA is one of several sea unions threatening to strike after September 2, when a Federal injunction expires.

ITU Discards Strike Plan for Rival Papers

Milwaukee, Aug. 20 (AP).—The International Typographical Union today turned down suggestions to establish competing newspapers in cities where strikes are in progress, but granted its official board broad powers in use of union funds for defense purposes.

The powerful AFL printers' union also agreed to continue its 4½ per cent assessment on the wages of 87,000 members for strike support purposes, a levy in effect since the ITU struck five Chicago dailies last November 24.

The entire defense fund was turned over to the Executive Council with powers to use it for, among other things, "expenses incurred in establishing or encouraging the establishment of enterprises to compete with or replace any establishment where a strike or lockout is in progress or is threatened."

Two resolutions directing outright union establishment of competing publications in strike-bound cities were withdrawn in favor of the broader measure.

The ITU delegates approved also organization of varitypers, who have replaced union printers in struck newspaper plants.

"This is one of our greatest problems today and it will not be solved by belittling the substitute processes or underestimating the people who work on these processes," the resolution said.

Earlier today ITU President Woodruff Randolph read a telegram from President Truman in which the Chief Executive promised to investigate charges that Senator Taft (R., Ohio) had asked National Labor Relations Board attorneys to bring contempt actions against the union.

"This is a shocking charge and it will be investigated thoroughly and immediately," Randolph said the President had wired.

Phone Unions Vote Joint Wage Action

Telephone unions that said they represented more than 400,000 workers held a conference here yesterday, severely criticized the Bell Telephone System, and created a "joint action committee" to seek higher wages.

No specific figure was set.

Union leaders declared it to be the largest number of phone employes ever to band together for joint action.

The meeting was attended by leaders of the Communications Workers of America, the CIO Telephone Workers Organizing Committee, and 13 smaller independent unions.

These included four groups of New York company employes, three unions from Pennsylvania, the Western Electric Employes Association from Kearny, N. J., and other groups from Ohio, Maryland, Connecticut, New Jersey and Delaware.

All of the unions are negotiating new contracts with Bell System companies or have contracts that can be reopened for a wage demand within the next 30 days.

The conference, called by President Joseph A. Beirne of the CWA and Chairman Allan Haywood of the CIO committee, adopted a resolution declaring that they "condemn the Bell System management and the operating company representatives for their horse-and-buggy collective bargaining policy."

They agreed to cooperate "in a program of joint action to the fullest extent permissible under the rules and regulations governing each organization."

Atom Project Walkout End Seen Monday

Los Alamos, N. Mex., Aug. 20 (AP).—A workers' spokesman said today there is hope for a settlement by Monday in a dispute idling 3500 men at the Los Alamos atomic project.

"Every effort is being made to get men back on the job," J. D. Qualls of Santa Fe, cochairman of the absentee workers, said: "We hope to have the entire matter settled by Monday morning." Qualls declined to elaborate.

The walkout, by members of AFL building trades unions, protests employment of nonunion labor by a street and road contractor.

Spokesmen for two larger contracting firms called on the unions to provide adequate shifts for their projects by late Saturday and early Monday. They said others of the 22 prime contractors here are expected to follow suit.

If the union cannot supply present workers or substitutes, to fulfill agreements, contractors' representatives said they will hire labor wherever it may be found.

Pessimistic on Pact

Chicago, Aug. 20 (U.P.)—International Harvester Co. officials are "very pessimistic" about an early settlement of the strike of 24,000 CIO United Auto Workers at seven Midwestern plants, a company spokesman said today.

College All-Stars Thumped by Vengeful Pros, 28-0

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Chicago, Aug. 20—ALL-STAR DUST:

Jimmy Conzelman, the white-haired sage who sent his pro champion Chicago Cardinals against the College-All-Stars tonight, was talking before the game of the Cardinals' defeat by the Redskins last year. "We hit rock bottom in that one," he said. "Our worst performance of the season."

POVICH

At that, the Cardinals might have won it said Conzelman. "Charley Trippi got that punt and romped it 75 yards for a touchdown and we're only 10 points behind. But it's called back on account of a penalty and we're licked."

It was the Cardinals' unluckiest play of the season, according to Conzelman. "What happened was that Mal Kutner, our good end, goes in to block the kick and gets booted in the face by Sammy Baugh's cleats. Kutner comes off the field bleeding and needs six stitches. Nobody is hurt except Kutner and he gets penalized 15 yards for roughing the kicker. "I'm not squawking now. That's the only ruling they could make. But the cut and bleeding Kutner couldn't understand how he roughed up anybody.

THAT ONE RANKS with a penalty handed Conzelman's Cardinals a few years back when they were pounding toward the goal line on the way to what looked like one of their rare victories over the Bears.

"We've got a third down on their 5-yard line late in the game and one of my ends goes down as if he's hurt. The referee won't believe it, and penalizes us 5 yards for deliberately stalling for time. Our man was faking it, the referee said. 'We never did get the touchdown. The man who was supposed to be faking it wound up in the hospital with a leg broken in two places."

Conzelman had a decision to make two weeks ago. He was under pressure from the National Football League to beat the collegians and prevent a third straight defeat for the pro champions who haven't scored a point in the game since 1945. Conzelman was confident he could whip his pros into shape to beat the collegians. But would he risk bringing his club up to an August 20 game, and invite staleness before the pro season was half over?—

THE PRE-GAME emphasis among the Collegians was on Johnny Lujack, Leahy's Notre Dame quarterback, and No. 1 attraction of the Chicago Territory. In fact, Bobby Layne of Texas who, like Lujack, is a T-formation quarterback, was virtually ignored in the pregame drills and foresaw little action for himself in the game.

Blair Cherry, Layne's Texas coach, declaring Layne had come to Chicago to play football, not sit on the bench, revealed that his man in desperation had sauntered over to the Collegians' single wing team and asked for a job.

If Layne is as good a football player as Lujack, he'll have opportunity to show it during the next month. They're both the property of the Bears and Coach George Halas says he would be grateful if Layne does prove himself a better man than Lujack. "Then I'll have two great ones," said Halas.

LUJACK AND LAYNE came out of college as quarterbacks, but they won't quarterback the Bears this year. Halas will use them in the left halfback spot where he breaks in all his quarterbacks. "That's where they learn the Bears' style," says Halas.

More than 50 of the squad of 70 college All-Stars will graduate into professional ranks after the game tonight, but even with such performers as Lujack, Layne, Herman Wedemeyer and Charlie Conerly in the contest, the highest-paid college star won't be seen in action tonight. He's Ray Evans, the good back from Kansas, whose contract with the Steelers calls for more money than any of the others.

Pittsburgh expects Evans to make the Steelers go, and agreed to accept the penalty of his nonappearance in exhibition games in order that he could put in three valuable weeks working out with his own club.

Wally Butts, Charley Trippi's old coach at Georgia, is helping to coach the Collegians in tonight's game, and his fellow coaches of the Southwestern Conference will shed no tears if Trippi and the Cardinals give Butts an unhappy night.

"It would give Butts an idea of what we had to put up with when he had Trippi at Georgia for four years," said an assistant coach from Alabama.

PROS' FIRST SCORE IN THREE YEAR'S—Big Elmer Angsman (arrow) of the Champion Chicago Cardinals plows over the goal line for the professionals' first touchdown since 1945 in the annual Collegiate All-Star game at Soldier Field, Chicago. Angsman made it on a 4-yard plunge, capping an 80-yard drive by the Cardinals in the first period. It was one of two touchdowns for the N. F. L. champs, beaten the last two years by identical 16-0 scores, as they swept to a 14-0 margin at halftime. Also identifiable are the Cards' Quarterback Paul Christman (44), and All-Stars Henry Foldberg (44-Army), Ike Owens (34-Illinois) and Jay Rhodemyre (21-Kentucky). The final count was 28-0 favoring the versatile Cardinals

101,000 See Cards Romp As Lujack Is Stopped

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, Aug. 20—The hard-bitten Chicago Cardinals, handling the College All-Stars like juvenile upstarts, romped to a 28-0 victory tonight before 101,220 flabbergasted fans in Soldier Field.

The pro champions of the National Football League displayed a quick contempt for the supposedly greatest collection of college players ever assembled and took control at the outset.

They ground the collegians under foot to score a first-quarter touchdown on an 80-yard march with Charlie Trippi and Elmer Angsman crashing with the ball; they built up another touchdown in the second quarter with Paul Christman pitching passes. They grabbed a collegiate pass in the fourth quarter to score again, and then they pounced on a fumble to set up Ray Mallouf's 13-yard touchdown pass to Trippi.

Leahy Uses 62 Players

They parried and blunted the T-formation and single wing offensive units shuttled into the game by College Coach Frank Leahy, and checked the Collegians' only serious scoring threat 1 yard from the fabled last white line.

Leahy used 62 of his 70-man squad against the 39-man Cardinal crew but fresh replacements of the Collegians encountered the same futility as their predecessors against the pros' smart line and clever secondary.

The big name college quarterbacks—Johnny Lujack of Notre Dame and Bob Chappuis of Michigan—were driven into the air by the failure of their running attacks from both the T and single-wing, and in the air they completed only nine of their 27 pitches.

Transcending the bigger college stars was comparatively little George Matthews, the halfback from Georgia Tech, who was a favorite forward passing target and top defenseman against Christman's pitches.

Cards Hold

The Cardinals held the Collegians in their tracks in their first offensive try after Navy's Dick Scott recovered a fumble by Trippi at mid-field, and after the All-Stars punted to a touchback the pros got under way.

They marched the 80 yards on 14 plays, marked by only one Christman pass, a seven-yard pitch to Trippi on the flank. Finding the big college line easy to pierce, Christman sent Trippi and Pat Harder and Angsman barging through. Trippi hit consistently for six and eight yards, and from the two-yard line Angsman scored on an old-fashioned crossbuck over left guard.

At that point, Pat Harder made the first of his four extra points after touchdown.

Edwards Hurt

The emphasis of the collegians' attack was on Lujack until he retired from the game with a twisted knee in the fourth quarter. The only other casualty of the game was Weldon Edwards, tackle from TCU, who is Redskin property. He went out in the second quarter with a leg injury, taken from the field in a stretcher.

Scott of Navy, made his second fumble recovery of the game to give the collegians the ball on the Cardinals' 27 in the second

78,382 Watch Satch Hurl 3-Hit, 1-0 Win

Cleveland, Aug. 20 (AP).—Ageless Satchel Paige shut out the Chicago White Sox with three hits tonight as the league-leading Cleveland Indians triumphed 1 to 0 before the largest night game crowd in major league history—a standing-romo-only assemblage of 78,382.

Paige's white-washing job was the fourth in a row turned in by a Cleveland pitcher and tied an American League mark of four straight shut-outs, set by the Cleveland club of 1903 and equaled by the New York Yankees in 1932.

The string of shutout innings pitched by Cleveland hurlers now totals 39, which is two short of the American League mark held by the Cleveland club of 1903.

The victory was the Indians' eighth in a row and enabled them to maintain a three-game lead over the Boston Red Sox.

Tonight's shutout was Paige's second in a row. He blanked the White Sox with five singles while winning a 5-to-0 game in Chicago last Friday night.

The fabulous Negro hurler now has won all three of his major league starts and has a season record of five victories and only one loss. A total of 201,829 customers have jammed their way into the stands to watch Paige in his three major league starts.

Satchel exhibited near perfect control tonight, walking only one batter and fanning five. Not a Chicago player reached third base and only two got as far as second base. Paige retired the side in order in six of the nine innings.

The Indians scored their only run off Southpaw Bill Wight in the fourth inning on singles by Manager Lou Boudreau, Ken Keltner and Larry Doby, the Indians' other Negro player.

Tonight's attendance of 78,382 exceeded the previous major league night game crowd of 74,747 set by the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox in Yankee Stadium May 26, 1947.

Spence's Homer Wins Opener

Nats Bow to Bosox in 10th, 5-4, Then Take 10-4 Lacing in 2d

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Boston, Aug. 21.—From three Nat pitchers today the Boston Red Sox extracted five home runs, five doubles, 10 singles, 13 walks, two wild pitches and two victories.

To move into second place the Red Sockers clipped the Nats, 5-4, in the first game, which required 10 innings, and 10-4 in the second game, which could have been halted after the second inning.

Ray Scarborough, ace of the Griff mound corps, was trumped by the homerun hitting of Vern Stephens and Stan Spence in the opener.

Stephens slammed a three-run round-tripper with two away in the ninth to send the fray into extra innings and Spence unloaded his homer in the 10th to wind up the affair.

DiMaggio Grand Slams

Seeking his 12th victory, Scarborough instead received his seventh setback when former-Nat Spence climaxed Boston's late surge.

To deal the Nats their sixth straight loss, Dom DiMaggio, Ted Williams and Bobby Doerr rapped homers in the nightcap. DiMaggio's came with the bases loaded in the second inning when the Red Sox sent 13 runners to the plate in a 7-run outing.

Earl Harrist, the relief pitcher who had made two previous unsuccessful tries as a starter, easily made it three in a row in the afterpiece. He walked six men in the second inning before Masterson came in to walk a couple more and uncork two wild pitches, one of which brought a run in.

DiMaggio's seventh homer was against Harist. Williams' twenty-first titanic smash which carried at least 420 feet into the right center stands—was at the expense of Masterson in the fifth inning, who also was clipped for Doerr's twenty-first in the same frame.

Kramer's Fourteenth Victory

The tenth Boston run, strangely enough, resulted from a mere walk and two ordinary singles. They were just trifling at the time, however, as they led, 7-2.

Jack Kramer, winning his fourteenth game against only five loses, gave up nine hits, the same number the Sox obtained, but the Nats couldn't hit home runs and Kramer didn't walk a man.

Kramer was nicked for a run in the first on a two-base error and two outfield flies, while Wooten's singleand Christman's double upped the Nats, lead all the way to 2-0, in the second. After that it was murder.

Although he had been rapped for eight hits, including four doubles in eight innings, Scarborough still appeared to have enough stuff to stymie the Sox for one more inning in the first game.

He disposed of Wally Moses and Dimaggio easily enough, in the ninth, then trouble began. He walked Williams who was promptly doubled to third by Johnny Pesky.

Up stepped Stephens and rammed the first pitch over the left field wall for his twenty-fourth homer, to tie the game.

Spence waited a little longer before swatting his tenth homer. He picked a 2-2 pitch, driving it into the Red Sox bull pen in right center, some 390 feet from the plate.

The Nats scored all of their runs against Mel Parnell, who came out for a pinch-hitter in the ninth.

The young lefthander gave up three hits in the first inning which, coupled with Pesky's error, resulted in a 3-0 Nat lead. A walk, Coan's single and Spence's error produced Washington's final run in the second.

Parnell held the sockless seventh-placers hitless for the next six innings, yielding his fifth and final single in the ninth. Earl Johnson pitched to only three batters in the tenth to receive credit for his sixth victory of the year.

Louis Declares He Will Retire Next Week—But

Indianapolis, Aug. 20 (U.P.)—Joe Louis said today he would "officially retire" from boxing next week, but will retain the right to reclaim the world heavyweight boxing title for six months.

Louis insisted he is "definitely finished with boxing." But he said that his formal retirement notice to Mike Jacob's Twentieth Century Sporting Club in New York would contain a clause which would enable him to reclaim and defend the title within six months.

Manor Park, Cook Take Johnson Titles

Unruffled by playing in a big league setting, the Walter Johnson Memorial Baseball League produced two "little world series" champions yesterday in a day-long outing at Griffith Stadium.

The championships were in separate divisions of the 12-and-under class. Manor Park captured one title by beating Rosedale, 10-7, coming from behind with a four-run outburst in the final inning. Cook took the other title by defeating Parkside, 5-1, in a five-inning encounter in which 12 bases were stolen.

It was the second straight win for both Cook and Manor Park in the best two-out-of-three series in the city-wide Johnson League's playoffs.

In another game played yesterday, Thomas (Tip) Peterson clutch-pitched his Bundy Tiger to a 2-1 victory over Kelly-Miller. This result threw the two teams into a tie for one of the 13-14 championships.

An early afternoon shower caused postponement of another game in the 13-14 class between Mirman Brothers of Takoma Park and the Gashouse Gang from Hearst Playground.

Takoma and the Gashouse Gang will play their stcond game Friday at 9 a. m. at the Ellipse. The rubber game between Bundy and Kelly Miller is scheduled for Tuesday at 10 a. m. on the Ellipse.

Manor bunched its runs, scoring three in both the second and third innings and four in the ninth to defeat Rosedale. Shapiro went the route for the winners, as did Niky for Rosedale, each allowing seven safeties. First Baseman Perlo led the Manor attack with three for four, one a triple.

Cook pecked away with the help of eight stolen bases, scoring in every inning while Lefty Wallace settled down after a shaky start to hold Parkside scoreless for the last four innings. Vincent Edmundson was the leading Cook thief

Mack Clarifies Mystery: A's Don't Make Mistakes

Philadelphia, Aug. 20 (AP).—Baseball's mystery of the year was solved today and the detective was none other than Connie Mack.

"Our boys just don't make mistakes," was the way the Philadelphia Athletics' owner-manager put it, when asked what was keeping the A's in the forefront of the American League despite a lack of stars.

Yankees Drop A's to Third With 6-2 Win

Philadelphia, Aug. 20 (AP).—The New York Yankees dropped the Philadelphia Athletics to third place in the torrid American League pennant race tonight, winning 6-2 before a crowd of 21,460.

Pete Suder's ninth inning homer accounted for the A's last run.

The defeat of the A's enabled Boston to take sole possession of second.

Southpaw Ed Lopat went the distance for the New Yorkers for his twelth win of the season. He held the A's to six hits.

At one stretch in the game, Lopat retired 16 successive Philadelphia batters. The defeat marked the eighth straight time in which the Athletics lost the opening game of a series.

Likas, Mulloy In Semifinals

Newport, R. I., Aug 20 (U.P.)—Little Harry E. Likas of San Francisco advanced to the semifinal of the Newport Casino Invitation Tennis Tournament today without loss of a set to eight-seeded Budge Patty of Los Angeles, 6—4, 12—10, 6—4.

The unseeded Likas gained the right to face Veteran Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., who became tournament favorite when defending titlist Ted Schroeder of La Chescenta, Calif., was eliminated yesterday.

Mulloy defeated Sam Match of San Francisco today, 6—1, 6—4, 6—4.

Tomorrow's other semifinal will pit third-seeded Bill Talbert of New York against another tournament surprise package, Victor Seixas of Philadelphia. Seixas accounted for the major upset of the 1948 outdoor season by conquering the top-seeded Schroeder.

Irving Dorfman of New York and Tom Brown of San Francisco advanced to the doubles finals by defeating Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., and Arnold Saul of San Diego, Calif., 7—5, 2—6, 6—2, 2—6, 7—5.

In another semifinals, the first-seeded American team of Frank Parker of Los Angeles and Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif., defeated the fourth-seeded American team of Seixas and Match, 9—7, 6—1, 6—3.

Parker and Schroeder will meet Dorfman and Brown in the finals tomorrow.

Gal Royal, Returning $4.40, Takes Feature at Marlboro

Football Assured for County Highs

High school football in Montgomery County will not be dropped this year.

County and school officials meeting in Rockville yesterday emphatically denied reports that the sport might be dropped and said such a move had never been considered.

The report apparently originated from a discussion by the county board of educatio last week on how to finance the accident insurance premiums for athletes, officials said.

The only question raised was one of routine budgetary procedure, the officials explained. Funds to finance the insurance will be made available, they added.

The disclosure came after a conference among County Supervisor I. G. McNayr; President Brooke Johns of the county commissioners; Dr. Edwin W. Broom, county schools superintendent, and E. M. Douglass, assistant schools superintendent.

Favorites Continue to Finish Well

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Marlboro, Aug. 20.—For the third straight day favorites won the majority of races and among those successful was J. K. Wynkoop's Gal Royal. The big 5-year-old mare, with Jockey Freddie Kratz aboard, coasted into the finish line to win the Savage Purse, featuring the Friday program conducted between showers and before a crowd of 7000.

Gal Royal, in winning her seventh purse of 1948, led E. L. Poston's White Easter and N. J. Greco's Waygood Girl to the wire in the test of 6½ furlongs which drew a field of eight. The winner was clocked in 1:25 3/5 for the sprint distance and rewarded her legion of backers with a $4.40 mutuel.

Erato and Gay Rocket raced each other into submission while vying for the pace. Then Gay Royal took command and it was all over except the pay-off. White Easter and Waygood Girl rallied but not enough to menace the winner.

The race marked the end of a six-victory streak for Mrs. George Fishback's Grandma C, trained by the youthful Miss Angela Tammaro. Her brother, Johnny, rode the mare but she just was moving over her head in the company.

Favorites figured in the key races to the daily double. In the second event H. D. Bailey's Bar-Ma-Pat, saddled by Trainer Earl Auld of Washington, had too much speed for his rivals and came home to a $4.20 mutuel while handled nicely by Jockey W. Miller.

There was a $12 pay-off on the double which began with a first race victory by William Finn's Colonel Govans, strongly ridden by Jockey Tammaro. Second Sight opened a long lead but Tammaro kept plugging and sent the 6-year-old on to win at a $4.60 mutuel.

Kratz rode his second winner of the day in the seventh race. He was aboard T. Thurston's Up Jack and after getting the big 10-year-old to the front, held him there to the end. Up Jack returned a healthy $17.60 mutuel.

Beginner Has Last Laugh: Learns Fish Are Epicures

San Francisco, Aug. 20 (AP).—Out in San Francisco Bay sailed Mrs. Woodward Melone on her first fishing trip.

Her husband jokingly told her the best bait to use was fried bacon, a slice of tomato and a geranium. She followed his advice.

Her catch—the limit for the day.

Sho' League 'Sho' Tough

Fredericksburg, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—The Class D Eastern Shore League had its third no-hit, no-run game of the week last night.

The latest was recorded by Ed Santuli, young Pittsburgh Pirate farmhand. He pitched the Rehoboth (Del.) nine to a 10-0 victory over Federalsburg. Santuli struck out five men and gave up six walks in chalking up his first no-hitter.

On Monday night, both Ed Black, 20-year-old, Salisbury Cardinal, and Gene Kern, 18, of the Cambridge Dodgers pitched no-hit ball.

Demon Indeed

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 20 (AP).—Demon Hanover, winner of the Hambletonian, scored his twenty-fourth first in 29 starts last night by taking the $2000 Oswego trot in 2:09 over a heavy track at the Saratoga raceway.

Mike Fright

So you'd like to be a football announcer?

Here are the lineups the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Boston Yanks of the National Football League may throw at the hapless guy behind the mike this coming season:

The Ump Is Fined

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 20 (AP).—President Frank C. Lane of the American Association today fined Umpire Bob Austin $25 for failure to observe baseball's adage that "bygones are bygones."

Lane said Austin, in ejecting Mnafier Al Lopez of Indianapolis from an August 18 game, added "fuel to the fire and caused more delay by "recalling" to Lopez an incident several weeks old for which Lopez was fined at the time."

with three stolen bases. He and Ray Kelly shared the batting honors with two hits apiece.

The day's best exhibition was that of Tip Peterson, the Bundy pitcher who twice whiffed two men with runners on second and third.

The score might not have been as close but for the flawless fielding of Harold "Little Mister" Middleton, the Kelly Miller shortstop.

quarter, but eight yards later the Cardinals took over again.

From their own 19 the Cards launched their second touchdown march. Christman hit Angsman, Trippi, Dewell and Kutner with passes, completing six of the first six he threw, to the consternation of the college secondaries. And then from the 13-yard line the Cards switched tactics and on a perfect trap play hoodwinked the All Stars. Vic Schwall, after faking to the left, swung up the middle for 13 yards and a touchdown.

The single-wings featuring Bob Chappuis, Charley Conerly and Chick Yerges, took over after that, got nothing, and were the victims of a 23-yard punt return by John Cochran of the Cards. Conerly made the punt and the tackle. The Cards' threat fizzled when Christman fumbled on the college 33 and Len Ford recovered for the All-Stars.

Leahy shook up his backfield again in the third quarter, moving Perry Moss of Illinois, into quarterback and shifting Lujack to left half, and that pair sparked an 84-yard drive that ended one yard short of a touchdown.

The big play of that drive was a tricky lateral-forward with Moss flipping wide to Lujack who pitched a long pass to Dan Edwards for 44 yards to the Cardinals' 21. Lujack took over at quarterback from that point and with a series of wide handsoff to Sandifer and Gompers took the ball to the Cards' eight.

One Foot Short

On an end around play, he handed off to Cleary for 7 yards. On fourth down and one to go, he sent Floyd Simmons into the right side of the line and the Cardinals piled him up a foot from the goal.

Deep in their own sector, the collegians attempted another passing drive with Moss replacing the injured Lujack. He aimed a pitch to Fears into the flat and Cardinal Center Vince Banonis snared the ball on the dead run and fled 30 yards to a touchdown.

Another Cardinal center, Bill Blackburn, was bad news to the collegians three minutes before the final gun. He rammed into Wisconsin's Earl Maves, with such violence Maves fumbled and Blackburn recovered on the collegians' 11. Following an off-side penalty the Cardinals got their fourth touchdown with the greatest simplicity—Mallouf's pass to Trippi who was alone on the right flank and scampered 13 yards to score.

Haas Shoots 65 to Take Denver Lead

Denver, Aug. 20 (AP).—Battling for his first major tournament victory as a professional, 32-year-old Freddie Haas, jr., of New Orleans, burst out in front in the $12,500 Denver Open today.

Three players shattered the 36-hole course record.

The former national college champion from Louisiana State took just 6 strokes to breeze through the Wellshire municipal layout. The seven-under-par performance, coupled with yesterday's 67, gave him a sensational 132 for the two rounds.

This bettered by two strokes the competitive 36-hole record established by Jimmy Clark of Inglewood, Calif., in the national public links tournament in 1946.

The husky Haas fired seven birdies and was never over par as he equaled the best 18-hole round of the tournament. He said it was as good as any game he ever shot during his two years as a pro.

Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., who had taken the first-day lead, with a 65, dropped into fifth place today with a 72.

John Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz., and Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who shot 66s yesterday for a second-place tie, were all even again today with 67s—and still tied for the runner-up spot. They also broke the course record.

At least a half-dozen remained well up in the running for the $2150 first-place prize to be awarded Sunday at the end of 72 holes.

Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., went around today in 67 for a total of 135 and fourth place.

Deadlocked at 139 were Ellsworth Vines of Iowa City, Iowa; Bill Nary of Phoenix, Ariz.; Jim Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., and Ky Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, the leading 1948 money winner with better than $40,000, will need to be red hot in the last two rounds if he adds much cash to his bank account this week. Mangrum had a 73 today for a total of 143 and was tied for sixteenth place.

At the end of today's firing the field was trimmed to the low 64 and ties. The highest qualifying score was 155.

Mrs. Godfrey Wins Congressional Golf

Mrs. John W. Godfrey's 91 won low gross honors in Class A in women's play yesterday at Congressional Country Club.

Mrs. Daniel L. Moorman was Class B winner with 95 and Mrs. Sam Bruce's 116 was low in Class C. Mrs. E. V. Brumfiel had the lowest number of putts, 29.

Czechs Beat Aussie Team: Doris Hart, Rihbany in Finals

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 20 (AP).—For the second successive year Mrs. Helen Pedersen Rihbany of Boston became a surprise finalist in the Essex County Club Women's invitation tennis tournament today. She won the right to face topseeded Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., in tomorrow's twenty-first annual championship windup.

Miss Hart, the tournament's odds-on-favorite, was extended by her Wightman Cup teammate, the third seeded Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, but she pulled out to win as expected, 9-7, 6-2. Mrs. Rihbany, unseeded this year despite her 1947 berth as runnerup, sprung the upset by defeating fourth seeded Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif., 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

Neither finalist is involved in the doubles final tomorrow. That division will offer the second seeded team of Mrs. Virginia Wolfenden Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., and Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Buck of New York City versus the second foreign seeded tandem of Miss Fry and Mrs. Sheila Summers of Johannesburg, South Africa.

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 20 (AP).—With their backs to the wall, Jaroslav Drobny and Vladimir Cernik, the two-man Czechoslovakian Davis Cup Tennis team, continued in the interzone finals by capturing the doubles match from Australia's Colin Long and Geoff Brown, 10—8, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4, today at Longwood.

The Czechs now trail two matches to one.

Tomorrow Drobny will engage Adrian Quist, the Australian captain, in the third singles match and Cernik will meet little Billy Sidwell in the other.

One more victory will move the Australians into the challenge round against the as yet unselected United States Cup defenders.

Both of the Czechs, while playing in Tandem, displayed a big improvement over their opening singles performances.

After Drobny served and won the first doubles game the opener ran with service until the eighteenth game, when the Czechs broke Brown for the first score.

Admission to U. N. Is Asked by Israel

Lake Success, Aug. 20 (AP).—The government of Israel tonight asked the Security Council to approve its admission to the United Nations.

The appeal from the new Jewish state was in the form of a memorandum to the 11 Council members.

Aubrey S. Eban, Israeli delegate to the U. N., said a formal application would be filed soon — probably at the opening of the General Assembly in Paris September 21.

The memorandum said recognition of Israel and her entry into the U. N. is essential to peaceful settlement of the Palestine problem and peace in the Middle East.

Applications first must pass the Council and then the 58-nation Assembly.

It was noted that the Assembly itself provided for creation of Israel through adoption of the Palestine partition plan which called for eventual U. N. membership for the Jewish and Arab states carved out of the Holy Land.

People Warned

Burma State Will Bomb Rebel Lands

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 20 (AP).—The Burmese government said today it will bomb and machingun all territory held by rebels. Civilians were warned to move out at once.

An official statement said more than 30 rebels had been killed in clashes with government troops during the past 24 hours.

Thakin Kywe, prominent Red Flag leader, was reported to have surrendered to police in Yamethin, a Communist stronghold in central Burma.

Churchill's Old Outfit Sails for Malaya Duty

Southampton, Eng., Aug 20 (U.P.).—The fourth Queen's Own Hussars, Winston Churchill's old regiment, sailed for Malaya today to bolster British forces fighting Communist terrorists in the peninsula.

The regiment comprised the first reinforcements to be sent to Malaya from Britain.

Jewish Court Orders Britons Tried as Spies

Jerusalem, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—A Jewish court today ordered two British citizens held for trial on a charge of spying for the Arabs in Palestine.

Frederick Sylvester, 31, faces eight charges of espionage, including complicity in the Ben Yehuda street explosion in Jerusalem before the truce. A number of Jews were killed in the explosion.

William Hawkins, 37, was charged with four acts of espionage. The trials probably will begin August 25.

Reports from Amman, Trans-Jordan, said high Arab officials are in Amman to discuss unification of Arab armies for an all-out fight against the Jews.

Prof. James Grover MacDonald, special United States representative in Israel, paid his first official visit to Israel Premier David Ben Gurion at Tel Aviv.

B-17 Arrives Here With Dead Engine

A converted B-17 bomber carrying Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, home from Europe, limped into National Airport yesterday with one of its four engines dead.

Also aboard the partially disabled plane were Assistant Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert and Maj. Gen. William F. McKee, Air Force assistant vice chief of staff.

General Vandenberg was returning from a two-week tour of Europe to attend a special weekend conference of the joint chiefs of staff at Newport, R. I. He left for Newport immediately after his arrival at National Airport.

The B-17 was en route here from Bermuda on the last leg of a flight across the Atlantic when one of its engines began throwing oil about 300 miles from Washington. The pilot, Lieut. Col. Phil Best, feathered the propeller of the faulty engine and flew the rest of the way on the remaining three engines.

Best reported the incident according to prescribed procedure. He said it caused "no concern" to those aboard the plane. However, it gave Air Force officers some jitters.

Four planes were dispatched to escort the disabled plane to National Airport, but only two arrived in time, an air-sea rescue plane from Westover Field, Mass., and a Coast Guard plane.

Red Cross Held 'Unfriendly' To Soviet Unit

Stockholm, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—The Russian Red Cross charged the International Red Cross committee today with maintaining unfriendly relations with the Soviets.

The charge was in a letter read to the first plenary session of the International Red Cross meeting here by Count Folke Bernadotte, who was elected chairman by unanimous vote.

Bernadotte said the letter explained the absence of the Soviet delegation. He said similar letters had been received from Red Cross organizations in Bulgaria, Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

The Russians also objected because the Spanish government was invited to be represented at the conference.

The letter said in part:

"The international committee refused a protest against cruelties committed during the war by the German Nazi government. It is furthermore known that the international committee of the Red Cross maintains an unfriendly attitude toward the Russian Red Cross."

N. Central States Foster Longevity, But Not Rockies

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—If it's a long life you want most, the best place for you is one of the chiefly agricultural States in the North Central region west of the Mississippi.

At least, so says the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. on the basis of a new longevity survey.

The average length of life for white females in the area mentioned is 69.2 years, for white males 65.2 years.

The survey showed prospects least favorable in the Rocky Mountain States. Average there is 66 years for white females and 61 years for white males.

On the whole, the survey indicated, white men in the Northern States have the brightest prospects for long lives, while the women's chances are slightly more favorable in the West.

Syrian Cabinet Quits

Damascus, Syria, Aug. 20 (AP).—The cabinet of Premier Jamil Mardam Bey resigned las tnight. (This dispatch, which passed through Syrian censorship, did not state the reason).

At Their Best

Royall Visits Camp, Lauds Guard Troops

SECRETARY ROYALL

Camp Edwards, Mass., Aug. 20 (AP).—Secretary of Army Kenneth C. Royall said tonight the present National Guard "will provide the best type of national defense we have ever had."

Royall flew back to Washington tonight after coming here by air to inspect National Guard units and Regular Army personnel at this camp.

Royall said "the National Guard of our Nation is more in readiness to protect this country than anytime in our history."

In answer to questions, he said "I expect no reduction in the size of the National Guard and Army Reserves."

He reviewed the Forty-third Infantry Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Kenneth T. Cramer.

Doctor Urges Better Care Of Mentally Ill

London, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Dr. George S. Stevenson of the United States National Committee for Hygiene, appealed today for more humane treatment of mental patients throughout the world.

Stevenson asked delegates to the International Mental Hygiene Conference to help put an end to cruelties inflicted on mental patients and inhuman conditions in many mental homes. He said some of the institutions are antiquated, crowded and filled with vermin.

"Too frequently, there is no special provision for the housing of mental cases," he said. "Instead they are kept in back rooms in their homes, in jails or allowed to wander the country unsupervised.

"The mentally ill are often not adequately protected from injury by the staff (of a mental home). In fact, the staff may actually inflict abuse upon them and insult them."

Stevenson said some patients are overworked and given long hours without pay. In some cases, he said, their discharge has been delayed because their work is useful.

Britain Can't Afford More U. S. Tobacco

London, Aug. 20 (AP).—The Board of Trade squelched rumors today that the British government is planning to ration tobacco.

The board also ruled out increased purchases of American leaf to ease a nation-wide shortage.

A spokesman suggested, instead, that "if all smokers were to smoke 1 cigarette in 10 less each day and refrain from hoarding, we should very soon see the end of queuing."

Explaining that Britain "cannot afford more dollars for tobacco," the spokesman said British manufacturers had agreed to take two thirds of the Southern Rhodesia crop for the next five years.

Unable to cut down the national smokes bill by taxes that boosted the price of 20 cigarettes to 70 cents, the government has ordered a one sixth cut in tobacco supplies to manufacturers.

Global Flight Will Continue, Model Asserts

Marseille, France, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Mrs. Richarda Morrow-Tait, pretty former model who left a husband and baby behind while she set out to fly around the world, today firmly denied reports that she had abandoned her flight.

Mrs. Morrow-Tait and Michael Townsend, 25, her navigator, took off from England Wednesday in a tiny single-engined plane for a leisurely globe-girdling. They crash-landed at Marseille yesterday.

"All I'm doing is waiting for my plane to be repaired before taking off for Castel Benito airfield in North Africa," she said.

She said she and Townsend could not leave before next Friday.

Masons to Sponsor Cruise for Veterans

The Fellowcraft Club of Benjamin Franklin Lodge No. 50, FAAM, will sponsor a moonlight cruise on the S. S. Potomac at 8:30 p. m. Monday.

Samuel Berman, chairman, announced that tickets will be sold to the public for distribution to the Disabled American Veterans. Last year, the lodge gave $2000 to the D. C. Society for Crippled Children.

13 Baltimore Hostel Members Due Here Today

Approximately a dozen members of the American Youth Hostels from Baltimore are expected here today to join Washington members for a weekend of bicycling, picnicking and square dancing.

The Baltimoreans are expected to arrive here by train about 9 a. m.

After bicycling along the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal to Great Falls for a picnic lunch, the two groups will hold a square dance at 8 p. m. on the terrace of the East Potomac Park bicycle rental building. Sunday, after attending church, they will bicycle from the Rock Creek duck pond to another picnic.

But the Ladies Are Lovely

'Jericho' Is Cluttered With Stray Sequences

By Sonia Stein

I HAVE long supposed that a picture made up of scenes dropped on the cutting room floor, might be pretty gay. However, I can assure you that a picture made up of scenes which look as if they had been dropped on the cutting room floor, is not gay.

Such is "The Walls of Jericho," a Twentieth Century-Fox effort which is now at the Palace. Except for its theatrical finale, the picture creeps along for the first 90 minutes or so, just setting the scene for the closing fireworks. It cannot be denied that the scene-setting is effective and enjoyable, but there is scarcely a sequence that could not have been dropped with no damage to the story.

In spite of it all, "Walls of Jericho" has its very considerable merits. Anne Baxter rarely crosses the screen without accomplishing something, and as a lady lawyer in Jericho, Kans., just after the turn of the century, she is charming. Cornel Wilde, looking tired and old for some reason, is the county prosecutor. Married to a pitiful but not very pleasant woman who drinks her sorrows away, Wilde cannot marry the lovely Portia.

Exemplary Couple

Linda Darnell (aha!) has been spurned ever so mildly by Wilde, who is her husband's best friend. Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned, so this one proceeds to make her publisher husband (Kirk Douglas) cut the political timber out from under Wilde by running for Congress himself and by impugning the prosecutor's professional conduct in his paper.

Eventually, even the man's private conduct gets kicked around, although he and Miss Baxter have been so far above reproach as to leave one gasping in admiration. But you know how it is with gossip.

The whole thing breaks just when Wilde and Miss Baxter are defending a young girl who has killed (in self defense) a drunkard of no very high repute in the town.

Bleary with liquor and goaded by the unrelenting publisher's wife, Wilde's wife puts a bullet through him. Miss Baxter handles the case alone (getting an acquittal, of course), turning in an acting performance for which she must receive an A for effective use of pauses, variety of voice quality and all the other tricks. As a legal plea, however, it is strictly odd. Novelist Paul Wellman and Screenwriter Lamar Trotti can toss for the discredit on that—I don't know which one to blame.

No Time for Wraps-Ups

Wilde is not quite dead at the end of the picture but you may guess as guess can what happens thereafter, since the picture uses up so much time getting set for the climax, it evidently has no time left to straighten things out.

There is plenty of atmosphere in the picture, including some realistic examples of gauche small talk. All the ladies—even Ann Dvorak as the drinking wife—are attractive. Marjorie Rambeau, as Wilde's mother-in-law; Barton MacLane, as the bully who gets killed, and Henry Hull, as Miss Baxter's father, add their efficient contributions. John M. Stahl is the man who directed the bunch in what I'd call a highly skillful fashion except for that rather pedestrian pace complained of above.

Greenbelt Rent Boosts To Be Sought Next Month

Council Charges Efforts to Lure Private Buyers; Fight Promised

Proposed new—and higher—rent for Greenbelt, Md., residents will be submitted early next month to Prince Georges County rent control authorities for approval, a Public Housing Authority spokesman revealed yesterday.

The proposed rent raise brought a spirited charge from Greenbelt town council members that PHA sought the raise only to make sale of the federally owned community to "large" prospective private buyers more attractive.

If the Prince Georges County rent-control officials approve the proposals, the PHA will remove the $3000 annual family income limitation on new tenants' admission to the town, it was revealed. Now a family with a higher income is barred.

1500 on Waiting List

The removal will make veteran status the only qualification for admission. The town, with 1892 family units, now has about 1500 names on a waiting list. The proposed rent raise, the PHA spokesman said, will be on a unit basis, rather than on a blanket percentage basis.

Town Mayor Thomas J. Canning, reiterating his previous stand, said last night that town officials would put up a fight against any "substantial" rent increases and termed the proposed new rates "inflationary, arbitrary and confiscatory." He charged the rates would "take away the recent Government raises of our residents entirely."

Mayor Canning said that in some cases under the tentative proposed schedules rents would be increased as much as 30 per cent. He told of one instance where the schedule plans to raise the rent of a 1½-bedroom home from its present rental of $42.50 a month to $60. Another proposed change would raise the rent of a three-bedroom home from $79 to $89.

Later the mayor issued a statement by members of the Greenbelt Town Council, which declared that the council members "are vehemently opposed" to any rent increase "at this time." The statement said the proposed new rates would affect the "great majority" of Greenbelt residents.

'Freezout' Suspected

"In view of the contemplated disposition of the town by the Federal Government," the statement charged, "it is our opinion that the only justifiable reason for the Public Housing Administration action at this time is to enhance the value of the return on the property and to make a sale more attractive for large prospective investors, thus freezing out the possible purchase of the community by the present occupants."

PHA officials declined to release figures on their present proposed scale of new rentals, terming the schedule "too complex" without going into detail. Moreover, they said, the schedule is still tentative and "may change considerably."

The permissible rent rates, the spokesman said, will be on a "maximum basis," which, the spokesman said, would not mean that every tenant would be charged that rate. The policy of making adjustments downward, he said, depending on family income and size, will be continued.

The new rentals, PHA said, will "be comparable to" rents permitted for similar housing in neighboring communities.

Rents for 892 units built when the planned community was started 11 years ago now range from $23 to $65 a month. During the war, another 1000 units were added to the community to acommodate war workers in permanent war housing units. None pays less than $23 a month, it was said.

Boy, 8, Dies Of Polio, 1st '48 Fatality In District

4 Additional Cases Are Reported in Washington Area, Making Total 76

An 8-year-old boy who died a day after entering the hospital became the District's first polio fatality Thursday night. Four additional cases were reported in Greater Washington yesterday.

The fatality was Robert Warren of 1416 R st. nw., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Warren. According to the Health Department, he was taken ill Monday and on Wednesday entered Children's Hospital. The case was diagnosed as bulbar type polio. The youth died at 10 p. m. Thursday.

According to a family spokesman, he was an honor roll student at Thompson School. Surviving are his parents and a 9-year-old brother.

The death was the second this year in Greater Washington. William B. Shisler, 20, of 3407 Commonwealth ave., Alexandria, died of polio on Tuesday. Last year three District residents and one in the nearby suburban area died from polio.

The four new cases reported yesterday raised the total for the area to 76, 37 in the District and 39 in nearby Virginia and Maryland. Last year at this time there were five in the District and eight in the suburban zones.

The new cases were a 6-year-old boy in the 2800 block of Terrace rd. se., who was treated for a slight case at home and listed as recovered by the Health Department; an 18-month-old girl in the 2300 block of Chester st. se.; a 1½-year-old boy of Davidson pl., McLean, Va., and a 3-year-old boy of the 800 block of Hevon dr., Silver Spring. The last three victims were admitted to Children's Hospital.

In North Carolina, where the polio epidemic has hit hardest, 25 new cases and three deaths were reported yesterday.

In Virginia, two new cases were reported yesterday, making the State total for the year 207. The new cases were in Westmoreland and Norfolk Counties.

Foundation Chapter Warns of Impostor

The District chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis warned the public last night that a man "suffering from a physical handicap and representing himself to be an agent of the Foundation has been making door-to-door solicitation of funds."

The chapter declared this was not authorized and that all funds are raised only through the March of Dimes campaign in January of each year.

50 Nurses Needed For Affected Areas

By The Associated Press

An urgent request for nurses for polio affected areas of the country was issued last night by the American Red Cross.

Ann K. Magnussen, national director of disaster nursing for the Red Cross, said there are 50 unfilled requests alone for nurses in North and South Carolina.

Approximately 900 nurses already have been recruited for service in polio areas, the Red Cross said.

Nurses who agree to take such duty are paid salary, transportation and maintenance by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the Red Cross reported.

Arlington residents have given 132 pints of blood in the Bloodmobile's three previous visits, Jones said, with 1800 pints expected for the 18 visits.

Police Hold Man Calling To Deny Guilt

Suspect Sought Since May Faces Robbery Charge

Chester Ernest Livesay, 22, was charged with a May 28 robbery yesterday after a police hunt of several weeks which ended when Livesay walked into police headquarters on Thursday to protest his innocence.

Police said the victim of the $231 robbery, Miss Marion Lambert of 256 Park ave., Takoma Park, Md., identified Livesay in a police line-up yesterday and 15 minutes later he admitted participating in the robbery.

Edward M. Shane, 28, of 1424 Belmont st. nw., was under a similar charge as the driver of the car in which Livesay got away.

Money Snatched From Hand

Miss Lambert was returning from the McLachlen Banking Corp., 10th and G sts. nw., to the Montgomery Ward office at 714 13th st. nw., where she is employed, when the money was snatched from her hand on 13th st.

Shane was arrested August 18 and identified by a witness who said he had almost been run over by the getaway car, according to police, who later learned that Livesay was also involved.

Livesay went to police headquarters and was met with open arms by Lieut. Otto Fuss, assistant chief of the robbery squad, and Detective Sergt. Carl Hayden, who had been working on the case since May 28.

The man told them he had been traveling in the South and also to Chicago, and had learned on his return that police were looking for him. He denied any connection with the robbery until after the lineup yesterday, they said.

Hotel Clerk Robbed

A holdup at the Bellevue Hotel at 15 E st. nw. early yesterday, which netted a well-dressed robber almost $100, was reported by Vaiden B. Hogwood, 42, of 2701 14th st. nw., night clerk.

Hogwood said a man approached him for a room at 1:30 a. m., then drew an automatic and demanded the cash box, which he received. He forced the clerk into a closet, and the box was later found, minus the cash, in bushes near the hotel.

Pvt. Preston M. Cox, one of six policemen who climbed to a grocery store roof early yesterday to capture two men later charged with housebreaking, suffered a broken leg when he fell through a marquee.

The policemen had responded to a call that a man had been seen on the roof of the market at 1033 3d st. nw. He and his companion, who had entered the store through a skylight, tried to get away over the roof, police said, but were stopped by a warning shot.

Hangs Self

Suicide At Lincoln Memorial

A 43-year-old laborer at the Lincoln Memorial hanged himself with a rope tied around a beam in the basement of the memorial early yesterday.

The dead man, James L. Walls of 4502 Church st., Brentwood, Md., was discovered by Houston Johnson, 29, a guard at the memorial, who lived with Walls.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, acting coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

The laborer, who was first employed at the Memorial three years ago today by the National Capital Parks service, had been joking with Johnson a short time before he discovered the body, Johnson said.

Neither Johnson nor Walls's widow, Mrs. Bertha Walls, was able to throw any light on the reason for Walls's act. He had been in good spirits before going to work, they said. Superiors said he was a good worker and a quiet type of person. This is the first such occurrence at the Lincoln Memorial, they said.

Besides his widow, Walls is survived by two stepchildren, Bernard, 21, and Mary, 20.

Man Attacks Woman Going To Storeroom

A housewife and mother was beaten unconscious about 11 a. m. yesterday in a basement locker room of her apartment house.

She is Mrs. Arlene Weaver Miller, of 216 O st. sw. Her screams frightened her assailant and he fled.

An examination at Gallinger Hospital, where Mrs. Miller was treated for shock and severe head lacerations, disclosed she had not been raped.

According to Lieut. Richard McCarty, head of the sex squad, Mrs. Miller was struck over the head several times from behind as she entered the basement storeroom, which had been broken into. She regained consciousness to find a man attempting to attack her criminally, Lieutenant McCarty said.

Mrs. Miller had gone to the locker room for something she needed, he said, and noticed the lock on the door was broken. When she entered to investigate, the assailant struck her over the head with a blunt instrument and then knocked her to the floor.

Police described the man as a dark skinned Negro, 5 feet 8 inches tall, 155 pounds, with a long, thin face covered with bumps and pimples. He was wearing dirty brown pants, T-shirt with dark and white stripes, and a tan cap.

Md. Police Plan 2 New Broadcasts

They will also feature a question-and-answer forum on Maryland traffic regulations.

Although the broadcasts will not be an official county police project, they have been sanctioned by both Prince Georges County commissioners and Maj. Ralph W. Brown, Prince Georges County police superintendent.

Second Postal Worker Dies In Bridge Leap

Maurice Homiller, 72, leaped to his death at 8:20 a. m. yesterday from the Benning rd. bridge over the Anacostia River, the second veteran postoffice employe to die in bridge jumps in as many days.

Miss Addie May Allgeir, 53, of 1465 Columbia rd. nw., employed in the railway mail section of the postoffice for 30 years, killed herself Thursday by leaping 120 feet off the Calvert st. bridge.

Harbor police recovered Homiller's body a short time after his jump by dragging the river. Police made a tentative identification through an envelope found in Homiller's jacket on the bridge. Positive identification was made by a nephew, Ward Beall, of 1600 N. Queen st., Arlington.

The victim's wife, Mrs. Lottie A. Homiller, told police her husband left his home, at 261 14th pl. ne., at about 7:30 a. m. for a customary walk.

She said he had suffered from nervousness since a son, Earl, 32, a private serving under General Patton, was killed in France in December, 1944. Homiller retired two years ago.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, acting coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

In addition to his wife, Homiller is survived by a son, Norman C. Homiller of Springfield, Ill., and a daughter, Mrs. John L. Wiesche of Parkland, Md.

School Bond Vote Sought In Arlington

Board Will Ask Referendum on 2 to 5 Million Issue

A two to five million dollar bond issue for Arlington school construction will be sought by the County School Board in a county-wide referendum in November, it was announced yesterday.

Board members said they plan to petition the Arlington Circuit Court for the referendum which would let voters approve or reject the issue.

Court order for the referendum will be automatic.

The Arlington board's announcement followed a trip to Richmond Thursday by a Fairfax County delegation to ask Governor Tuck for $7,500,000 in school building funds.

State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, head of the delegation, urged a special General Assembly session to enact a sales tax to finance the construction. Tuck said he was "studying" the proposal, but suggested that the county meanwhile "do the best it can." Tuck's suggestion presumably was meant also for other counties desperately in need of school facilities.

In Arlington, where strong opposition to a sales tax exists, the School Board has not yet calculated the exact amount of the bond issue to be sought. However, Board Member Colin MacPherson said a new junior high school, a Negro high school, and numerous extra elementary school classrooms are being studied. School consultant Edward J. Braun estimated the county needs 150 to 200 additional elementary classrooms.

Board Member O. Glenn Stahl said the new junior high alone would cost about $1,500,000, and he estimated the bond issue, including other items, at "more than two million dollars, but less than six million dollars."

In May of 1947, Arlington voters rejected all but one part of a six-million-dollar school construction bond issue, approving only $1,776,000 for an elementary school building. About a third of this amount has been spent.

Health Hazard Held Growing In Alexandria

Marshall J. Beverley, Alexandria councilman-elect, yesterday charged that "the critical situation that exists in the Alexandria Health Department is getting more grave every day."

He urged that "immediate action be taken to let the taxpayers know we have a health department."

Specifically, Beverley attacked the continued existence of a marshy area at the end of Colonial ave. near Vernon st., which he said is "infested with rats, snakes and mosquitoes."

The new councilman, who takes office September 1, said a resident of the area said he had recently killed a snake beside the large vacant lot where his 3-year-old daughter played.

Beverley said the condition had been reported "many times" to the Health Department, and called it "another example of the do-nothing policy."

"The budget for the Health Department this year is $92,840," Beverly pointed out. "From this allocation and the equipment we have, the taxpayers are entitled to health protection."

Health Officer W. Lewis Schafer, jr., said he had received a complaint from residents in the area earlier in the week and had sent recommendations to the city manager for correcting the situation.

Schafer said he had received similar complaints several months ago. At that time, he said, the city engineering department partially filled in the field with gravel.

205 Workers Paid by D. C. Get U. S. Raise

More than 200 workers paid by District funds will receive the $330-a-year Federal pay raise, Comptroller General Lindsay Warren disclosed yesterday.

The workers include 164 employes of the National Capital Parks and 41 in the Register of Wills office. Warren ruled that these workers are not "in and under" the District government, but function under the Federal Government.

Last month, the comptroller general decided that 134 persons employed in the National Zoological Park and 15 National Capital Park and Planning Commission employes paid by District funds are entitled to the raise.

The District Commissioners have asked the comptroller general to decide on whether 516 persons paid in whole or in part by District funds should be given the raise. Since then the official has ruled that 61 workers in the recorder of deeds office are not eligible, and he is expected to rule on other agencies shortly.

These include the Washington Aqueduct, the probation system, the Columbia Hospital and Lying-in Asylum and the National Guard.

FWA Buys Club, Estate as Health Institute Site

Purchase of Woodmont Country Club at Rockville Pike and Michigan ave. in Bethesda and the nearby 48-acre estate of the Rev. G. Freeland Peter for use as the site of the National Health Institute's Clinical Center Laboratory has been arranged, the Federal Works Agency announced yesterday.

The Woodmont Club will receive $600,000 for its 115-acre site, and Dr. Peter, former cannon-chancellor of Washington Cathedral, will receive $505,000, the FWA said. Dr. Peter is now retired.

The country club will continue to use its buildings and all but 20 acres of its property for about 2½ years, pending start of construction of the laboratory. Dr. Peter will retain the use of his home and 10 acres of land for the same period, FWA said.

$22 Million 'Dream House' To Assemble Scattered GAO

The 10,000 employes of the General Accounting Office, scattered in a score of offices since the agency was created 18 years ago, were given a word picture yesterday of the $22,850,000 "dream house" planned for them at 5th and G sts nw.

Commissioner W. E. Reynolds of the Public Buildings Administration, who expects to ask for bids on construction of the huge building by early winter, announced it has been designed for pleasant working space, good lighting and air conditioning the year around.

The building—which will occupy almost the whole block bounded by 4th, 5th, G and H sts. nw., excavated in 1941—also will have escalators between the first five floors, in addition to six fast elevators.

It will be the first Federal building with fluorescent lighting throughout, but Reynolds and Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming said all future Government buildings will have this feature.

The employes' cafeteria, instead of being in the basement, as usual, will be located on the third floor, acording to PBA announcement, and the basement space will provide a garage for 800 automobiles.

The seven-story block-type building will be of limestone, without courts or wings, in order to get the maximum usable floor space and to provide large open areas for files and business machines, Reynolds said.

The only space in the block not taken for the structure is the northwest corner, which will continue to be occupied by St. Mary's Church.

Reynolds said the main public entrances will be on G and H sts. nw. A truck entrance and loading platform at street level will be on 4th st., with an additional entrance and platform at basement level.

The $22,850,000 set by Congress for construction is in addition to about two million dollars already spent for the site, excavation work and preliminary planning. After excavation, building was delayed by the war.

Area News in Brief

Court Row Ends In Boys' Club Gain

Two participants in a Municipal Court argument weren't very charitable to each other but they opened up their checkbooks to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

It happened earlier this week, but the United States Attorney's Office gave out the story yesterday.

A woman came into the office at the court shouting that she had been shortchanged by $5 at a department store. Assistant United States Attorney Edward L. Carey called in the store sales clerk and manager, but no agreement could be reached.

Finally the woman declared: "I'd rather contribute the difference to charity than to haggle."

The manager said he'd more than match anything she tendered.

Checkbooks were produced and the woman madeout a check for $10. The manager made his for $25.

Preliminary hearing of charges a discharged truckdriver tried to kill his former employer was continued yesterday until Monday in Bethesda Police Court.

The defendant, Reginald I. Smith, 42, of 4339 Harrison st. nw., was charged in warrants sworn out by Walter E. Carter, vice president of Fussell-Young Ice Cream Co., who said he disarmed Smith after a tussle at the Carter home.

Judge Warren Browning recessed yesterday's hearing without a decision, after he said he could not determine immediately whether the prosecution had shown that Smith had specifically intended to kill Carter.

The incident was said to have occurred Tuesday night.

Held in Mail Theft

Charles P. Watts, jr., 24, of 632 Maryland ave. sw., was held under $500 bond yesterday for grand jury action on a charge of mail theft.

According to testimony before United States Attorney Cyril S. Lawrence, Watts, a substitute mail carrier, took $4 from a letter addressed to the E. N. Brown agency.

Lawrence has an office in room 405 in the Bank of Commerce and Savings Building. The Brown agency is in room 410 in the same building. Watts delivered mail to both Lawrence and the Brown agency.

Parcels to Fly

Inauguration Sepetember 1 of newly authorized air parcel post service will give Washington overnight delivery of packages to practically every city in the Nation, Clyde Doran, United Air Lines' district traffic and sales manager here, pointed out yesterday.

Air parcel post will receive the same preferential treatment accorded air mail by the Postoffice Department. Packages may be sealed but must be less than 100 inches in length and girth combined and weigh less than 70 pounds.

Air parcel post rates will be determined by the same zones in use for regular parcel post. Typical rates from Washington, he said, to other major cities will be: to Cleveland, 60 cents for the first pound and 8 cents for each additional pound or fraction; to Chicago and Detroit, 65 cents for the first pound and 14 cents for each additional pound or fraction; to Denver, 75 cents for the first pound and 45 cents thereafter; to the West Coast, 80 cents and 65 cents for each additional pound or fraction.

25th Anniversary

Riverdale Firemen Set Celebration

The Riverdale (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department will observe its twenty-fifth anniversary beginning Monday, with a week-long program that will be climaxed by a parade through the town's business district.

Throughout the week, the volunteers will sponsor a carnival at Queensbury rd. and Lafayette sts., where nightly programs will include a variety of novelty contests in addition to the usual carnival entertainment features.

The parade, to be held next Saturday, will form at 1 p. m. at Queensbury and Taylor rds. and proceed through the business district to the Riverdale School. It will feature fire departments, rescue squads and veterans' organizations from a number of nearby communities.

Old-timers who responded to the first alarm when the department was organized in January 1923 will participate in the celebration.

At that time, the first piece of equipment, a Model T Ford pumper, was purchased through public subscription. Present equipment includes two modern pumpers, one purchased by the Town of Riverdale and the other bought from the department's's general fund.

Officers of the company are Frederick Weigand, president; Lance Reid, chief; David Zaas, assistant chief; J. W. Bush, captain; Wayne Chinn, lieutenant, and William Walter, sergeant.

Truscott Keeps His Form: Seizes Youth in $93 Theft

Inspector Floyd A. Truscott, currently acting superintendent of police in the absence of Maj. Robert J. Barrett, hasn't lost his touch.

Yesterday, at 2:10 p. m., a 17-year-old youth grabbed $93 from a cash register in a filling station, at 2125 14th st. nw., then fled in a cab. The number of the cab was flashed over the radio. The lookout said the cab was headed out Florida ave.

Truscott was passing Florida ave. and Eckington pl. ne., when the warning came over his radio. He ordered his driver, Pvt. Timothy Hickey, to head northwest on Florida ave.

Sure enough, Truscott and Hickey spotted the cab, forced it to the curb and dragged forth the youthful passenger.

Convention of Handicapped Asks U. S. Aid Human Salvage

The Washington Post

WHEELCHAIR POET—Howard F. Nolan, 45 in October, has been crippled with arthritis since he was 14. He can still use several fingers to jot down notes or write poetry. His courage has been an inspiration to members of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped, now in convention at the Roosevelt Hotel

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

An aggressive campaign for creation of a Federal commission on services for the physically handicapped was begun here yesterday to help salvage the Nation's human scrap pile.

Strachan

It was led by Paul A. Strachan, president of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped, who opened the AFPH's fourth biennial three-day convention at Hotel Roosevelt.

Stone deaf and tone deaf, Strachan "heard" the applause through his feet. Fellow delegates who could not hear followed his address through hand language of the Rev. Louis Foxwell of Odenton, Md., manual interpreter at the speaker's stand.

Urges Congressional Action

"It is time Congress got its nose out of dung-hills and looked at the mounting human scrap pile of misery and need of our own millions of disabled," rumbled Strachan, pointing out that the Government appropriates 40 times as much money for such things as "chickens with pip, sheep affected by gid, pigs with cholera, bugs which bite trees and plants, and why cows have miscarriages."

Nods of approval from those who could nod, the metallic clip of applause by those with metal pincers where others have hands, and floor thumping of legs manacled for mobility, greeted many of his words. About one third of the audience was recognizably crippled, the remainder hid their infirmities, or were able friends of the disabled.

"The time has come when this country must stop its niggardly method of dealing with the problems of its millions of disabled," declared Strachan.

Arthritis Victim Prays

Howard F. Nolan, 45 in October and crippled with arthritis since he was 14, closed his eyes as in silent prayer as he listened in semi-reclining position in his wheelchair. Strachan is the man, he told reporters, who is "doing the things I have wanted to do but can't."

"We do not mean that the United States should engage in a give-away program," said Strachan.

"Amen," said Nolan, admitting his main concern was that the Nation's physically disabled be given the opportunity for gainful employment to the limit of their capabilities. There's no known job Nolan can do, he said. His only paid job was for several months in 1917 as a candy wrapper before the sugar shortage closed the factory.

Today, an inmate of the Philadelphia Home for Incurables for nearly 24 years, he finds difficulty in any movement, and is thankful he can still use several fingers to jot down notes or write poetry.

My joints feel sore, for the weather's damp,
I could travel more, if all steps were a ramp;
There must be something I can do, besides sit,
Some little niche that I could just fit.

Nolan wrote that of himself and his fellow sufferers. He's written similar pieces on others, disabled by polio, blindness, heart ailments, deafness, tuberculosis, spastic paralysis, epilepsy, leprosy and amputation. His courage and his good humor are an inspiration to workers for AFPH.

Other speakers told of accomplishment of industry and the Government in providing opportunities for the physically impaired to work. H. Richard McCamant, rehabilitation officer, U. S. Civil Service Commission, told of continuing efforts toward Federal use of physically handicapped persons.

Walter Mason, national legislative representative for the American Federation of Labor, told the delegates of organized labor's efforts to aid the cause. He, too, condemned the present Congress, declaring:

"We will have to wait until we get a more friendly Congress that will share our concern with the common man of this country."

Joseph Short, president of the National Press Club, cheered the assembly with anecdotes of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and other national leaders who overcame physical handicaps. Of President Truman, he said:

"The President's heart, energy and weight of his office are behind the good works of educating employers to hire people who are lifting themselves up out of their handicaps."

Need for Clinics

E. B. Whitten, executive director of the National Rehabilitation Association, another speaker, deplored the lack of clinics throughout the Nation for the treatment of epileptics, speech correction, deafness and the dearth of centers for schooling in the use of artificial limbs.

Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, national president of the General Federation of Womens Clubs, told of their work to aid the disabled.

It was meat and drink for the more than 10 attended. They had come from as far as Wisconsin, Michigan and Georgia. To many, it was a none too pleasant trip. Nolan came via baggage car of the Pennsylvania Railroad "with a bunch of pigeons." Yellow Cab Co. here provided him free use of a cabulance for his stay.

Officers Reelected

Last night, Strachan of Washington and other officers were reelected.

Returned to office, besides Strachan, were Miss Ruth Scott, secretary; Ralph A. Collins, treasurer, and Harry S. Wender, general counsel, all of Washington.

Thirteen vice presidents were reelected and three new ones were chosen: Alan Crammatte, Washington; Miss Ruth Halbein, Philadelphia, and Henry P. Crutcher, Detroit.

Vice presidents from Greater Washington, who were reelected included Col. Robert S. Allen and H. Richard McCamant, Washington; Dr. Ira D. Scott and William P. McCahill, Arlington, Va.; E. Susan Hendricks, Hyattsville, and Frank Shuber, Edmonston, Md.

Main event of the convention will be the biennial banquet tomorrow night at Hotel Roosevelt. Congressmen and Government officials are expected to attend.

Masking Covenant Held Illegal Act

Landlords who fail to disclose racial covenant on real estate to prospective Negro buyers are guilty of misrepresentation, the Municipal Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

The opinion written by Judge Andrew M. Hood concerned only property deals made before May 3, 1948, when the Supreme Court said that racial covenants were unenforceable. However, legal authorities hazarded the belief that the same principle would apply today.

The case decided yesterday was brought by Lonnie H. Trawick, 734 Otis pl. nw. to recover a $250 deposit placed with Ralph D. Cohn, Inc., 1424 K st. nw.

In 1947, according to the suit, Trawick, a Negro, attempted to purchase the property at 739 Princeton pl. nw. from its owners, Claude A. Hazard and Pearl M. Hazard. Trawick believed that he could occupy the premises when he made the deposit with the Cohn company.

In his opinion, Judge Hood said there was a duty on the part of the Hazards to make disclosure of the covenant.

"Here the seller offered and contracted to sell to a Negro property which the seller herself had covenanted not to sell to a Negro. . . . Failure to make disclosure constituted misrepresentation," he said.

Under the decision the Cohn Co. must return the $250 deposit to Trawick, who was represented by Attorney George E. C. Hayes.

Robertson Gives Reply to Critics Of Potato Buying

Pulaski, Va., Aug. 20 (AP).—Approximately 2000 Farmers' Day celebrants got lessons in agricultural economics today from United States Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) and John R. Hutcheson, chancellor of Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Dr. Hutcheson cautioned that an imminent "modern price decline for farm products does not mean depression."

Senator Robertson said:

"Much is said of the use of Federal funds to buy approximately half of the commercial potato crop raised in Virginia this year. But we must not overlook the fact this was part of a temporary program to protect farmers who greatly increased their acreage in response to Government pleading during the war and who deserved help with their reconversion problem just as much as did the manufacturer who was allowed to write off the cost of wartime plants and equipment."

Three Youths Charged With Rifle Thefts

David J. Harwood, 18, a National Guard private, was placed under $500 bond yesterday on a charge of stealing a .30-caliber carbine from the guard armory here.

Meanwhile, police announced that two other youths have been charged with stealing two M-1 Garand rifles from the Armory. They are Chester C. Courtland, 19, of 2510 24th st. ne., and a 16-year-old boy. Courtland is to have a hearing August 25 before Lawrence. The juvenile is held for action in Juvenile Court.

The other two defendants were arrested after complaints were received of firearms being discharged near the National Training School for Boys. The boys were seen in the vicinity and the rifles discovered in the bushes.

Willie Clegg Goes to Jail For Assault

Julius Willie Clegg, 27, of 1926 Rosedale st. ne., was found guilty yesterday of assaulting Mrs. Gussie Watson, the woman with whom he has lived for the last three years.

Clegg was ordered committed to District Jail for 30 days after he failed to raise a $25 fine imposed. He was found innocent of a companion charge of threats.

Mrs. Watson testified that Thursday afternoon, after an argument, Clegg hit her in the face, kicked her in the body, bit her in the neck and threatened to kill and disfigure her. Clegg denied this, stating that she pushed him, thus starting the fight.

The trial was before Judge Armond W. Scott in Municipal Court.

Clegg, an employe of The Washington Post, charged last year that he was beaten and otherwise mistreated by police who arrested him while investigating a series of sex offenses.

However, the District grand jury refused to return an indictment against the police involved, and subsequently a police trial board found the officers innocent of all charges.

On-Land Pipe May Bring End To Complaints of Oil Seepage

An on-land oil pipe now under construction may end complaints by Anacostia River boat and land owners of oil seepage from underground pipes onto a waterfront area at 13th and Water sts. se.

Completion of the line, which is being constructed by L. P. Steuart & Bros., Inc., fuel oil firm, is expected about the end of this month, according to Richard L. Counts, general manager.

Counts yesterday said the firm may have been responsible for the seepage at times, but that the oil could have come from other pipes. The Washington Gas Light Co. also has pipes in the area.

Complaints from residents of the area are that on rainy days oil oozes out of the soil and covers land about 400 feet long and 200 feet wide. The Corporation Counsel's office has investigated the complaints, but has been unable to fix responsibility, assistant corporation counsel Philip Brophy said yesterday.

The Steuart company's on-land pipe will run some 1700 feet from the firm's wharf at the foot of 13th st. se. to the plant at 14th and M st. se.

While the new pipe will enable the company to spot leaks, Counts said yesterday that the primary purpose of the surface construction is to facilitate maintenance.

Indian Envoy And Mrs. Malik Entertained

By Elizabeth Maguire

In honor of India's High Commissioner to Canada and Mrs. Malik, a small reception was held yesterday at the Indian Embassy. Guests were received by the Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock.

The hostess was gowned in gold sari, and her guest of honor, Mrs. Malik, wore a blue sari trimmed in wine and gold embroidery. The High Commissioner cut a distinguished figure with his pointed grey beard and grey turban.

An unexpected guest at the party was a little buff cocker. Suddenly darting from a doorway into the drawing room, he had a mad scamper among the guests. He was scooped up by a servant after one round, however, and carried away.

Delights Children

The dog's name was "Sona," which is Indian for "gold." He was left by the former Indian Ambassador, Asaf Ali, as a gift to the embassy. And now Sir Rama Rau's grandchildren delight in his company.

The High Commissioner and Mrs. Malik are very popular in Ottawa, where they are presently stationed. While they were stationed in England, Mr. Malik was one of the champion golfers there.

Miss Santha Rama Rau, daughter of the Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau, wore a black chiffon sari to the party yesterday. Her blouse was black satin with tiny flower print, her sandles were black and gold and she wore a heavy circle of gold around her throat.

Mrs. Nehru, wife of the Minister of the Embassy, was costumed in amethyst and silver. Her sari was hand-woven, hand-made gossamer. American Beauty red was worn by lovely Mrs. Chaudhuri, wife of Military and Air Attache.

Miss Sterling Is Guest

Miss Dorothy Stirling, who was at the party, said her brother, Alfred Stirling, had departed for South Africa the day before to take up his new duties as Australian High Commissioner. Mrs. Loy Henderson had a chat on the sofa with Lady Rama Rau and Mrs. Malik. It was learned that her husband, the newly-appointed United States Ambassador to India, left the hospital yesterday, after two operations. The Hendersons will probably leave for India the middle of September, going first to London.

Among other guests were the Ambassador of Australia and Mrs. Makin, the Ambassador of Pakistan and Mrs. Ispahani, the Minister of New Zealand and Lady Berendsen, the Minister of South Africa, H. T. Andrews, the Indian First Secretary, I. S. Chopra; Mr. and Mrs. Jamshed Vesugar, Capt. and Mrs. E. Chester Beck and the British Counselor, B. Cockram.

The embassy drawing room never looked lovelier than it did yesterday. It opened up nicely for the occasion, with fresh garden flowers placed around tables, with inviting looking dishes of hors d'oeuvres.

Fall Campus Fashions

BACK-TO-SCHOOL clothes continue to hold the fashion spotlight in Washington as the young set gets ready to pack away vacation memories along with sunsuits and organdies. Yesterday the Palladian Room at the Shoreham Hotel was thronged during the luncheon hour when Jelleff's presented its regular Friday fashion show there. College togs were featured, ranging from trick little slumber and lounge costumes for the dormitory to swirling bouffant-skirted taffetas for prom time. Skirts were slim for daytime, wide and gathered for "after 5"; shoulder pads were used in tailored suit jackets only; all the shoes had at least a tiny flat heel; and plaid stoles were shown on both suits and coats. Cotton, now an established year-around fabric, was shown in a variety of styles

PEGGY PRESTON

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

GREEN is an important color for the fall campus, and pert little Betty Foy models a wool suit in a fetching shade of green which matches her umbrella. The jaunty jacket is straight in front, but swings in loose folds from the shoulder line in back. Collar is of black Persian lamb. With it she wears a black felt pillbox hat, trimmed with a flirtatious, stand-up feather

COTTON calico print is big fashion news with the lass who goes to college this fall. Our model wears a two-piece frock in an old-fashioned pink and blue print against a black background. It features natural shoulders, push-up sleeves and full skirt gathered to a wide band at the waistline. "Flats" remain popular footwear for classes, but they always have a suggestion of a heel, frequently only half an inch high

Life Begins Straighter

Forty Is Good Age to Check And Correct Poor Posture

By Ida Jean Kain

ONE woman refuses to settle for anything less than good posture: "Please tell me what chance I have to change my very poor posture now—I am 40 years old."

Forty is a good time to check up on posture, for one fault can lead to another and all are strengthened by time.

"How long will I have to 'hold it' before good posture feels natural?" she asks. "It makes me so tired now."

That's natural. Through slumped posture the wrong muscles have been strengthened. First, get straightened out.

Those glib instructions to "pull your hips down and under, and pull the abdominal muscles up and in" may not have much meaning for you; but actually this muscular motion gets the center of gravity right where it belongs. This coordinated action is responsible for keeping the pelvis pushed forward directly under the figure . . . which is basic to making your posture self-supporting.

Muscles Are Uplifters

The middle muscles are capable of two actions —they pull up and they pull in. You know all about pulling your stomach in, but the up-pull is equally important. It's the midriff muscles themselves that must be uplifters, rather than having the pull come from chest or shoulders. And that way the lift puts tone in the right muscles.

To test, stand sideways to a full-length mirror, and slim yourself by pulling up with the abdominals and down and under with the hips. Now you're on the beam.

Positon: Lie on back, with knees flexed, soles of feet on floor, arms outstretched at shoulder level, elbows bent and arms up to form an L. This keeps shoulders flat.

Movement: Pull firmly up with abdominal muscles and press small of back against floor. Hold . . . relax and repeat several times.

Exercise on Floor

Position: Lie on back on floor, feet elevated on low bench or chair seat, arms down on floor at sides.

Movement: Raise one leg straight up in the air to right angles and at the same time fling arms back on floor beyond head. As you do this, pull up and in with lower abdominals, press small of back smack against the floor, and stretch slim through the entire midriff. The stronger the upstretch, the better the reflex contraction of the abdominal muscles. Repeat eight times, later 12. Finish by resting with knees hugged to chest.

Theater Sponsors Fashion Contest Of Dress Designs

Judges for the dress designing scholarships, sponsored by Loew's Capitol Theater, will include fashion editors of local newspapers and women radio commentators.

To find the most talented potential dress designer in Washington, Gene Ford of the Capitol Theater in conjunction with his "Going Native" revue and the fashion show in it, invited Washingtonians over 18 years of age to send in original sketches to the scholarship editor at the theater. Prize will be a scholarship to the Magda School of Dress Design.

The drawings or sketches need not be on a professional scale, as judging will be entirely on the appeal and versatility of the design. A contestant may send in as many designs of dresses, suits or evening dresses as desired. The contest closes at noon on September 1 and the judging will take place at the theater at 8 oclock that evening. Notification of the winner will take place directly afterward.

Dr. Bateman, Haven B. Page Are Married

Dr. Jeanne C. Bateman of New York City and Haven B. Page of Washington were married yesterday at All Souls' Church. The Rev. Alfred W. Birks officiated at the ceremony which took place in the out-door courtyard of the church. A small reception followed at the Chevy Chase Club.

The bride is the widow of Roy D. Bateman, patent attorney. She received her medical training at George Washington and New York Universities and she interned in hospitals of the District.

Mr. Page is a Yale alumnus. During the war he served as a commander in the Naval Reserve, and he is a member of the D. C. Bar and the National Press Club. His marriage to Mrs. Tanis Garber Page of Seminary Hill, Alexandria, was terminated by divorce.

The couple will live in Washington.

Dr. Koch Marries Mrs. Earl McKinley

In Universalist Memorial Church yesterday, Mrs. Earl Baldwin McKinley of Washington and Dr. Harlan Clifford Koch, professor of education at the University of Michigan, were married at 5 o'clock. The Rev. Seth R. Brooks officiated.

She is a member of the Washington Club and of the Twentieth Century Club.

For Good Recipe For Banana Pie

BANANA CREAM PIE

½ tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup cold milk
1½ cups scalding milk
4 egg yolks
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
4 ripe bananas

Meringue (made of 4 egg whites, ½ cup sugar and 1½ teaspoon vanilla). Mix sugar, salt and cornstarch together. Add cold milk and blend. Add scalding milk gradually and cook in top of double boiler, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Beat yolks until light and pour small amount of hot mixture over them, stirring rapidly. Return to remaining mixture in top of double boiler and cook 4 minutes longer. Add vanilla and cool.

Slice bananas and fill pastry shell with alternate layers of them and the cooled filling. Cover with meringue, made by beating eggs until frothy, adding sugar, then beating them until stiff. Add vanilla last. Pile on pie and bake in slow oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) for 15 to 18 minutes.

How can I remove a mahogany oil stain spot from a white cotton sport shirt? K. E. W.

Since the shirt is white and cotton, you should be able to get the spot out with chlorine bleach and photographer's "hypo" (sodium thiosulfate solution). Either wash in hot water or sponge with dry-cleaning fluid first to remove the oil. Then put chlorine bleach full strength on the spot and allow to remain one minute only. Sponge with the "hypo" to remove the chlorine, then rinse well. The "hypo" can be purchased at photographic supply shops.

We have just bought a 19-year-old house. All the woodwork is solid oak and chestnut which has been varnished. The varnish has darkened wood. We are now interested in having all the woodwork painted in oil paint the color of the walls (pastel) or possibly white, and are anxious to know the simplest way of treating the wood to get the best and most lasting effect. H. E.

The dark woodwork should first be rubbed lightly with sandpaper, then sponged with turpentine to take off all dirt and grease and dull the remaing gloss of the old finish. As a first coat, brushed on thin in an even tone, use an undercoater, thinned with turpentine if necessary. Two applications of undercoater, plus a coat of either enamel or flat or semigloss interior paint, may be needed to hide the dark woodwork. It's possible, though, that one coat of the undercoater will suffice.

Some painters use aluminum paint instead of an undercoater to cover a dark surface. If this is used, be sure that the aluminum paint is freshly mixed so it will provide a tight, metallic coating. Aluminum paint is moisture proof and, being opaque, will completely hide the surface beneath. The final coat of paint is applied directly over it after it is thoroughly dry.

Pudding Mix Is Time Saver

To save time in preparing desserts, especially in summer, many housewives like to make up their own pudding mix ready for rapid use in a variety of cornstarch puddings, pie or tart fillings, or filling between layers of cake. For such a mix, dry skim milk powder—known as nonfat dry milk solids—offers convenience, good keeping quality, economy and high nutritive value.

The following recipe, suggested by the Michigan Experiment Station, makes three to four servings of pudding

To make the mix combine thoroughly 1½ cup sugar; 1½ cup cornstarch; 1 teaspoon salt; 7 cups dry skim milk and store in a tightly covered container. To prepare pudding, use ¾ cup of the mix to 1¼ cup water. Add water gradually, stirring until smooth. Then bring to a boil over gentle heat. Add ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

Many variations are possible with this mix. To ¾ cup of the mix may be added:

1. A tablespoon chocolate syrup or ½ square bitter chocolate, shaved or melted.

2. ¼ cup chopped fruit—fresh, canned or dried.

Traveling Tips For Mother —And Baby

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

If you haven't taken your vacation, yet, you will probably take it this month or next. There are always innumerable problems when you travel with a bottle-baby. There is the prime consideration of good milk, to be kept cold, and bottles to be washed in sanitary fashion, not to mention extra foods for the hungry little traveler.

If you expect to have a good vacation, with no illnesses, try to treat the baby as nearly as possible as you do at home. Don't experiment with new foods. Don't keep the baby up until excessively late. Don't over-handle him. Be sure before you choose any vacation site that you can depend upon a good supply of both water and milk.

Canned milk is an excellent choice for the trip, even if fresh milk is used once you arrive at your destination. One small can (about 4 ounces) can be diluted with an equal amount of boiled water, with a teaspoonful or so of corn sirup or malt sugar added, and this will make an acceptable single bottle for the child from 6 months or over. The can of milk can be opened when needed and any unused contents thrown away. The water can be boiled before leaving home, kept in a sterile glass jar with tight cover, or in a thermos jug. If in the latter, it can be kept hot and when mixed with the cool milk will be just about the right temperature for serving.

Dried milk makes a good travel formula, too. Ask your doctor for the right proportions for your baby's formula. Stir the powdered milk into the boiled water and add the sugar. It should not take much over 24 hours to get to any vacation resort and enough bottles for that time, with one or two extra, should make it comfortable for all concerned.

Pack one suitcase with just the baby food, small saucer, teaspoons, diapers, changes of clothing and toys needed for the baby. Disposable diapers, or liners to be used inside regulation diapers, will save the task of laundering or carrying soiled diapers.

When you plan the trip, start making lists of what you have to have so you need not trust to memory during the last hectic day. And expect that rapid transportation, heat, changes of water and milk are apt to be upsetting agents. Then you'll be ready to deal with them intelligently and minimize their influence upon the baby and children.

Capital Residents Spend Holidays At Cape Cod

Washingtonians currently at Cape Cod include Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock and Mrs. H. T. Andrews, wife of the Minister of South Africa, stopping at the Wianno Club. Tea dancing at the club last Wednesday were the Undersecretary of the Navy, W. John Kenney, and Mrs. Kenney and Miss Maria Sheerin.

Just a short way from Wianno, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., are spending the summer at Great Island, and over at Bass River for a short stay are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thacher Winslow and Mr. and Mrs. Woodliffe Thomas.

Up at Southampton, Long Island, Mr. and Mrs. John Avirett of Baltimore will be weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Smith of New York, formerly of Washington.

Mrs. Chapman Heads Unit

Mrs. Pearl D. Chapman was elected president of the James Reese Europe Unit No. 5, American Legion Auxiliary, at a recent meeting.

The other officers are Mrs. Edith Smith, Mrs. Charlotte Lancaster and Mrs. Marguerite Brent, vice presidents; Mrs. Henrietta Earley, chaplain; Mrs. Beatrice Braxton, historian; Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, sergeant at arms; Mrs. Norma Johnson and Mrs. Celeste McCoy, color bearers; Mrs. Marion A. Bell, secretary; Mrs. Ruth Johnston, recording secretary; Mrs. Abbie Riddick, treasurer, and Mrs. Mignonette Carpenter, property custodian.

Household Hints

Never fill a tea kettle to overflowing. Leave enough space for expansion or the water will boil over and spoil the appearance of the stove as well as running the risk of scalding someone nearby.

If you have given a dinner that has proved very successful, do not hesitate to serve the same dinner to a different group of guests later on. It will save you considerable work in planning and if you have the same number of guests as before you are aware of the quantities necessary.

'No Improvement,' Says Voice From Kitchen

"Did you see the story about the Piggly-Wiggly man, Clarence Saunders?" I asked from the depths of an easy chair the other night.

"No," came back a preoccupied voice from the kitchen. "What's he done now?"

"He's invented a completely new kind of grocery store. Everything is painless and automatic."

"Is that so!"

"Yep. It says here that all you do is stick a key in a little slot, like dropping nickels at the automat. The item in that slot automatically gets on a conveyor belt, and waits there while you select the remainder of your purchases. When you're finished, everything is waiting for you, up front. No clerks. They've all been eliminated."

"How nice. It sounds wonderful."

"It sure does. You see, this key also records the value of your purchases, and when you're all through you take the key to a check stand where the cashier . . ."

"That's enough," cut in the weary voice from the kitchen. "I knew there was a catch to it. What I'm looking for is the kind of store in which they retain the clerks and eliminate the cashier."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

About six weeks ago, a man did something so nice for my son, Stevie, that I found myself bursting with such good will that I went about looking for nice things to do for others.

The man is Earl Culp, manager of the swimming pool in Potomac Park. I hope you'll be able to spare a few lines to tell this story about him.

My Stevie is 7, and I entered him in a swimming class conducted jointly by the Red Cross and the Recreation Department. He loved it, until the instructor came to the part which required putting his head in the water.

I tried all the psychology and strategy I could, but Stevie's howls told me he wasn't having any. That's when Earl Culp happened along.

He calmly took Stevie's hand in his, quickly made friends with the boy, and then started walking and talking.

Around the pool they strolled, with Stevie gradually overcoming his fear; and when Mr. Culp finally left him at the end of the swimming hour, Stevie was back in the water, practicing his kicking at the side of the pool.

A few more sessions, and Stevie was anxious to rejoin his class, and soon learned to swim. And my boy wasn't the only one Earl Culp helped. We mothers were spellbound by the way he worked with our children.

We found that he's a school principal in Harrisville, W. Va., and manages the Potomac Park pool in the summer.

But wherever he goes, he apparently feels that his job includes the loving and understanding of children.

I know this is a long story and that you'll boil it down to three or four lines—but I do think it needs telling. Thank you.

Mrs. Howard M. Murphy
3160 N. 17th st.
Arlington, Va.

Dear Mrs. Murphy:

A heart that big can't be "boiled down" to three or four lines. My thanks to you—for the reassurance that the spirit of good neighborliness hasn't been completely obliterated from this bitter world yet. Bill.

SUGGESTION

Morris Siegel, our baseball reporter, is a man of action. He says:

"You gripe about the guy who kills two parking spaces by stopping in the middle of both, but you don't do anything about it.

"Why don't they paint white rectangles on streets in residential areas, as they do downtown, and hand out tickets to anybody who doesn't stay inside the lines? Parking space is getting too precious to waste it on knuckleheads."

Traffic Director Keneipp is invited to consider the suggestion for five whole seconds before he starts explaining that he has neither the manpower nor the budget to adopt it.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three part-Persian kittens to call them 'beauties' would be an understatement." (Randolph 0806).

"Two black male kittens, will be ready for delivery in 2 or 3 weeks." (Union 1421).

"Gentle mother cat and four fluffy kittens, 3 weeks old." (Union 6719).

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Some days we can't get away with a thing. Last Sunday's big spread on Falls Church included a pip of an error, which was fielded on the first bounce by J. Abramson of 217 S. Lee st. Our story said:

"Water rates will continue at $4.50 quarterly for the first 10,000 gallons, and 30 cents a gallon thereafter."

At that rate, after the first 10,000 gallons it would be cheaper to use high-test gasoline for your bath.

Paul A. Greene of 1600 16th st. nw. was alert enough to catch a rather obscure boner on the sports page. The caption under a picture explained:

"Stan Spence speeds safely across first base, preventing the Nats from making a double play on Vern Stephens' grounder."

If it's really true that Stephens hit that grounder and Spence ran to first for him, the American League umpires must be as negligent as our Mr. Kuhel has charged.

NEW YORK—A New York promoter wrote to George Bernard Shaw proposing a Decca album of recordings, "The Best of G. B. Shaw," by the Best Cast: Maurice Evans, Katharine Cornell, Gertrude Lawrence, Burgess Meredith, Raymond Massey and others—and with a commentary by John Mason Brown, the drama critic . . . Mr. Shaw expressed interest in the project, intrigued by a money-earning device for his plays which even he, the foremost expert in such matters, hadn't thought of. "One condition I must impose," Shaw replied, "is that school children must not be compelled to listen to it."

S. N. Behrman, the playwright, was at a dinner party in Hollywood, where he told the guests: "A funny thing happened to me on the way to the Congress of Vienna" . . . "But the Congress of Vienna took place a century ago," one of the guests reminded him . . . "That's true," Behrman replied, "but I have a very good story about Metternich, and I didn't know how else I could bring it into the conversation."

Fritz Thyssen, the German industralist who now is facing a de-Nazification trial, once was friendly with Krupp, the munitions maker. Their friendship ended, Thyssen says, when they vied for Hitler's favor. Thyssen was one of Hitler's first supporters and claimed priority on his esteem. Krupp's admiration for the Feuhrer was born only after Hitler came to power, but soon his ardent nazism surpassed even Thyssen's . . . Their final split came when Krupp's son was killed while piloting a Nazi plane. The leaders of Germany then went to Krupp's home to offer condolences. "I vowed never to speak to Krupp again," says Thyssen, "when I heard him say 'My only consolation is that my son lost his life for Der Feuhrer.'"

Bartley Crum, who helped organize the Willkie campaign, will make campaign speeches for President Truman . . . Philip Willkie will be admitted to the Indiana bar on September 21, and will start his door-to-door campaign for the State Legislature the next day . . . Lorraine Dresselhuys, the American heiress and expatriate, is recuperating from a long siege of illness. Like Barbara Hutton, she's suffering from having tried to lose too much weight . . . Irving Stone, author of the new official biography of Earl Warren, is a Socialist. "I wish there were a way," he says, "to vote for Norman for President, and for Earl Warren for Vice President."

Bill Goetz, the movie executive who just returned from Europe with a rare collection of modern paintings, showed them to his friends. "One of the men who helped me find these in Paris," said Goetz, "is the biggest lover in all France" . . . "How do you know?" Harry K[illegible] inquired him. "In France do they give concerts in such things?"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Young Plans N. Y. Central Rule

(While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

Robert R. Young, scrappy head of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, is returning to the wars.

In an exclusive interview with the Washington Merry-Go-Round, the truculent little Texan announced his intention to make a new fight to gain control of the New York Central system, took a lusty poke at the Association of Railroads, and blasted both Democrats and Republicans.

Young

Young was tripped up on his plan to become the leading railroad tycoon of the country when the Interstate Commerce Commission, last spring, blocked his taking over the New York Central.

The ICC held the consolidation would be harmful to the Virginian Railway. This carrier, a competitor of Young's C. & O., has large contracts with the New York Central. Young now has it all figured out how to meet this ICC objection.

He proposes to take over the Virginian.

"We will refile our application with the ICC," he said, "and include the Virginian in our plans. That consolidation will protect the Virginian's interests, and there certainly ought to be no objection to that.

"The Virginian is controlled by the Koppers Co. of Pittsburgh, a Mellow outfit. It is my understanding that the Koppers people have felt for some time they are skirting very close to the edges of the Clayton Anti-Trust Act in keeping control of this railroad. If they feel that way, they should be willing to dispose of their stock. We'll be glad to buy the stock, and clear up the situation for all concerned."

Anti-AAR Blast

Young's caustic antipathy to his fellow railway executives is not new. Time has not tempered it. He denounced the Association of American Railroads with unabated vigor.

"The AAR has only itself to blame for the Government's claim to hundreds of millions of dollars in alleged wartime freight rate overpayments," Young declared.

"The Association could have gone to the ICC during the war and openly asked for higher rates. The railroads could have gotten a 6 per cent profit instead of a measly 3 per cent. Then they wouldn't be facing a demand for reimbursement today when they can ill afford it.

"But, apparently, the AAR wants litigations. It is run by lawyers who prefer to make big fees by litigating rather than working out a sensible settlement. In the meantime, the public reads about the overcharges and feels that fraud has been perpetrated.

"Another example of AAR stupidity is the Western rate case, on which a decision is now pending. That's the case in which former Secretary Averell Harriman (whose family controls the Union Pacific Railroad) was very mysteriously excluded from the list of defendants. I predict that the railroads will wind up by losing this case along with hundreds of thousands of dollars in fees to the lawyers. They always win.

"I know the Justice Department would have settled this case on a reasonable basis three or four years ago. But instead of doing that, the AAR insisted on fighting. Now the railroads find themselves caught in an election year between the two parties. Both the Democrats and Republicans are out for blood and the railroads are a nice juicy victim—thanks to their own stupidity."

No Freight Cars

Young also placed much of the blame for the shortage in railway cars on the AAR.

"The shortage is more acute now than it was a year ago," Young asserted. "The AAR says this is due to steel shortages. If that is so, why is it that automobiles, airplanes, trucks and buses are being made in such enormous numbers? They have no trouble getting steel. Why can't the railroads do the same? Certainly, the AAR has as much political influence as the auto makers.

"The real fact is, the association doesn't want to modernize. If it really did it could get the steel. I charge a deliberate lack of sincerity on the ARR's part in wanting steel for the railroads."

Plague on Both

As Young sees President Truman, he is a far different man from what he was as United States Senator. And Young doesn't like Republican Representative George Bender, Ohio, any better for what he is doing in charging the railroads with gypping the Government on wartime freight rates.

"The Senator Truman with whom I once dealt and President Truman seem to be two different people," Young declared. "As Senator, Mr. Truman was a vehement critic of Wall Street. He displayed a viewpoint which we thought would continue when he became President. Instead, look what he did. He took into his Cabinet Averell Harriman, James Forrestal and other Wall Street bankers who have bitterly opposed every effort to modernize the railroads, to stimulate competition, and to strengthen the carriers for national defense.

"Representative Bender's subcommittee is making a political football of the railroads. The carriers are one of the key economic and defense assets of the Nation. They should not be kicked around by politicians for vote-getting purposes."
